DEATH'S DOINGS.

FAUCETTE.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Faucette's four months old daughter MARGARET, died on Saturday last of cholera infantum. The funeral took place on Monday and was largely attended, Rev. J. M. Robertson officiating.

HOLBROOK.

MRS. H. FRANCES HOLBROOK, aged 70 years and one month, died at the family residence, Fourth street, on Monday after an illness of several years, suffering from a complication of diseases. The family came to Emporium in 1870, when A. G. Holbrook, deceased, engaged in the hardware business. Two daughters survive the father and mother, Mrs. Minnie Forbes Marietta, O., and Miss May, who, has lived with and cared for her mother. Funeral services will be conducted this afternoon at the residence.

Dr. D. H. Lamb Visits Emporium.

D. H. Lamb, one of Galeton's most prominent business men, accompanied by his wife, came to Emporium last Saturday to visit old friends, guests of Prothonotary C. Jay Goodnough and wife. This is Mr. Lamb's first visit here since the terrible accident befell him last May, which resulted in the amputation of his right arm. The Dr. takes his misfortune like a soldier and appears to get along quite well—in fact the Dr. says he can catch just as many fish with one hand as two, which he demonstrated recently at Keuka Lake, while visiting his vineyard. Mr. and Mrs. Lamb are meeting many of our citizens and evidently enjoying their visit.

Found a Diamond.

A large excursion from Washington and Philadelphia passed through this city on Friday on its way to Niagara Falls, and one of the passengers was a wealthy lady of Washington. Before the train reached Emporium the woman told Conductor Beachler, of Harrisburg, that she had lost a valuable diamond ring since starting on the excursion. She was told that everything possible would be done to find it for her.

Upon his return trip Conductor Beachler told Stationmaster Hyman at the upper station of the loss of the diamond. "Yes," replied Mr. Hyman, "and we have it for you." The excursion train had stopped 20 minutes at the station here, and during that time the Washington woman had left the train and gone to the toilet room in the station. Shortly after the train had departed, Mrs. Obourn found a diamond ring on the washstand in the toilet room. She promptly handed the gem over to Superintendent Lincoln and the latter sent it to the owner.—Williamsport News.

Eye Specialist.

Prof. W. H. Budine, the well known Eye Specialist, of Binghamton, N. Y., will be at R. H. Hirsch's jewelry store, Emporium, Pa., September 18th and 19th. If you can't see well or have headache don't fail to call and see Prof. Budine, as he guarantees to cure all such cases. Lenses ground and fitted in old frames. Eyes tested and examined free. All work guaranteed.

Ready for Fall Trade.

The Misses Ludlum have returned from a two weeks visit to Cleveland, where they purchased and elaborate line of millinery and dress goods, carefully selected especially for this trade.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, Sept. 7, 1903.

Editor Press:—

The Alaskan Boundry Commission is now in session in London and the proceedings are being followed with intense interest both by officials of the State Department and by those citizens familiar with the contentions of the United States and Great Britain. Already the American commissioners have made a strong point. It is that the United States has, from the time of the cession of Alaska to the present day, maintained but one interpretation of the treaty of 1825. The Canadians or British contentions, on the other hand, have varied repeatedly. From a demand that the dividing line be drawn on the 41st meridian, down to the contention that the line be drawn straight across such arms of the sea as Glacier Bay and Lynn canal, the British have been modifying their demands and giving evidenee of possesing a claim which must depend for success on skillful diplomacy rather than on an equitable interpretation of the facts. The presence of ex-Secretary of State Foster as "agent" of the American commissioners is a source of gratification to the State Department as it is realized that he is more than any other individual, able to present the case of this country in its strongest light and hopes are running high as to the eventual outcome of the proceedings:

The European squadron has arrived at Beirut but so unsettled are conditions in Turkey reported to be that the State Department is waiting for further advises from Minister Leishman before instructing Admiral Cotton to open the sealed orders he found awaiting him. The situation in Constantinople has become so grave that the government has been obliged to advise the ambassadors and ministers to guard their embassies and legations with unusual care. The Turkish government has added to the street patrol in the vicinity of the foreigh quarter and the diplomats have generally called upon the station ships of their respective nations for guards or marines. The United States legation now has a small guard of paid police but Minister Leishman had been authorized to call upon Admiral Cotton for a squad of marines if the situation seems to warrant it. It is also possible that one of the American vessels, probably the Machias will go through the Dardanelles and another off Constantinople in order that it may be in readiness to receive the Minisiter and his family in the event of a general uprising. While there is a provision in the treaty effected just after the Crimean war prohibiting war ships from entering the Dardenelles there is also a clause which permits the entry of one ship of each friendly power when Turkey is itself at war.

Fatal Accident.

An Italian employed on P. & E. R. R., cinder crew, was almost instantly killed at the furnace on Sunday, living but one hour after the accident. He was leaning over the side irons of the elevator watching the hoist and evidently did not know that another elevator was coming down. The top of his head was crushed. Dr. Bardwell was called but the poor unfortunate, who had only been in this country a very few months and leaves a wife in Italy, soon passed to the great beyond. His remains were buried from St. Marks church on Monday. This makes the fourth death that has occurred at the works and neither of the unfortunates being in Mr. Brady's employ.

Holding His Own.

At this writing our friend Hinkle, who has been very near death's door for several weeks, is somewhat better and holding his own. Dr. H. W. Good came up from Philadelphia last Sunday and, at the reqest of the family, a consultation of physicians held, which was attended by Drs. Good, DeLong, Heilman and Bardwell. The doctors see a hope and are fighting for that hope.

For Sale.

An ideal driving horse. One that will please you all day long.

One light single and one light double harness, one pair light sleighs and one platform wagon.

One yoke oxen, one two seated carriage with top, one road cart with top, and two open road carts.

As I have no use for the above mentioned, I can and will give you the worth of your money.

Terms: Cash, or approved paper, with reasonable time.

The Civil War in England.

Apropos of the pleasing and instructive spectacular entertainment which will be given in the opera house next week and which will no doubt receive the large patronage it deserves, a few words regarding the Civil War in England in the seventeenth century may be in place.

There is a common tendency, due in part to prejudice and in part to intellectual sloth to try to simplify too much our views of historical spochs. "The passion for broad generalizations," says Morley, "works havoc with truth." We try too much to see in every great contest a plain issue between right and wrong, between tyranny and freedom, or between law and anarchy. This undiscriminating tendency may very easily lead either to the apotheosis of Cromwell as "the transcendental hero and liberator of mankind," or to the vilification of him as a hypocritical and blood stained usurper.

As regards the religious aspect of the strife, it is a mistake to suppose that the issue centered in the principle of toleration. The contest was between opposing and mutually intolerant systems. King Charles and Laud contended for the divine right of episcopacy. The theory of divine right is in its nature doctrinaire and visionary; it is up in the air; it is unrelated to practical human experience. Had Charles and Laud held to the sober position of Richard Hooker, who vindicated episcopacy on the substantial and comprehensible ground of experience, they would never have inaugurated the trivial and visionary policy which led to such acts as the cropping of Prynne and Postwick. On the other hand, the Puritan opposed episcopacy on grounds quite as doctrinaire and visionary as those on which Charles and Laud contended for it. Against the theory of the divine right of episcopacy they set up the equally irrational theory of the divine right of presbytery or congregation, as the case may be. They did not oppose episcopacy on any broad and intelligible ground of experience, but on the fantastic ground that episcapacy is divinely wrong. In this clash of opposing systems, each claiming exclusive devine right, it is difficult to see how the Puritan of the seventeenth century can be regarded as the champion of the principle of religious toleration. Moderate royalists like Folkland and Jeremy Taylor had that principle at heart in an unspeakably larger measure than had the zealots of the Parliament of 1656, who punished a crazy fanatic by tortures as horrid as any that Laud ever inflicted. The friends of toleration, such as Folkland, Taylor and Hall, on the one side, and Seldom, Baxter and Milton, on the other, were men whose level of thought was far above that of the visionary exthemists who precipitated the strife. It is probably safe to say that although Cromwell was singularly free from the vice of a religious intolerance, toleration as a principle or cause in itself was not a part of his defined policy. He had nothing to do with abstract principles; it was always conditions and not theories that confronted him. As Lord Protector his single aim was to establish a settled and firm government, and he was well content to leave religionists of every sort unmolested so long as they did not seek to undermine his power. But even in this attitude the Puritans as a body gave him little or no support.

Though the strife under its religious aspect was not waged about the issue of toleration, it did indirectly promote the cause of toleration by demonstrating the futility and harmfulness of intolerance.

Under its civil aspect the cause of the Puritans was the cause of constitutional freedom as long as the puritans were merely the opposition party. But with the establishment of the Commonwealth and the Protectorate the face of things was changed. No English sovereign ever based his rule upon principles more arbitrary than did Cromwell. He was at constant strife with his Parliaments. The explusion of the Long Parliament was as high handed an outrage upon the principles of constitutional government as was the ineffectual attempt of Charles to seize the five members in 1641. The Lord Protector imposed taxes upon the nation without Parliamentary authority, the very thing by which Charles precipitated the civil war. James I. declared that his rule was based upon the common weal, not the common will, and Charles from the scaffold asserted that "people are free under a government, not by being sharers in it, but by due administration of the laws of it." Singularly like these utterances are those of the Lord Protector: "The people will prefer their real security to forms." "Yet I have another argument to the good people of this nation whether they would prefer having their will, though it be their destruction, rather than comply with things of necessity."

The difference between Charles and Cromwell was that Charles was arbitrary because he wished to be, while Cromwell was arbitrary because conditions obliged him to be. Furthermore, although Cromwell came finally to stand on Charles' principle that people are to be ruled, not according to what they like, but according to what is best for them, the ideas of Cromwell with regard to the good of the people were immeasureably nobler and more real than those of Charles. Cromwell was an Englishman through and through, and he had the Englishman's instinctive perception of the practical both in ends and means. Charles was a foreigner in blood, in temperament and ideas. He was moreover a visionary pedant. "His fault," says Morley, —and no statesman can have a worse —was that he never saw things as they are." J. M. R.

Handsome Front.

The handsome pressed brick front just completed in N. Seger's block, occupied by R. Seger & Son, next to Bank, is a very great improvement and a credit to the wide-awake citizen.

Limestone Coating.

Manager Brady of the iron works, who is a firm believer in good roads, has given the Borough 250 tons of crushed limestone, which is now being placed on Fourth street cinder roadway. It bids fair to be a success when once rolled sufficiently.

The Piano Fund.

While the audience in attendance Friday evening was not as large as wished for such a worthy purpose, those who did attend were given a rich treat. Miss Gilmore, the elocutionist, was well received and repeatedly encored. Miss Frank Huntley's singing was simply grand and completely captivated the audience. Hope we may have more of it.

Outing.

The I. F. F. club gave a dance at Keystone Park Pavilion last Friday evening, the party being chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. S. Kline and Mr. and and Mrs. John Butler. Among the out of town guests were: Misses Mayme Walsh, of Johusonburg; Etta Fotchman, St. Marys; Messrs. Jessee Young, Horace Smith, Pat Duffy, Frank Anderson, Bud McManigal, Renovo; John Hackett, Ned Hackett, John Riley, Driftwood; Leo Snyder, DuBois. All report of having a jolly good time.

Oliver Cromwell Entertainment.

Elegant costumes, capable participants, splendid music and beautiful lessons of the 17th century life in England will be some of the pleasing features of the Cromwell entertainment at the opera house on next Monday and Tuesday evenings, Sept. 14th and 15th.

Oliver Cromwell was the great man of the 17th century. The forces he set to work brought about religious toleration and a church supported by voluntary contributions. Macaulay, the historian, says: "The work of Cromwell contained the principle which has made life tolerable in Saxton countries. It gave religious freedom to the Dissenter, it secured the independence of judges, it limited the duration of Parliaments, it placed the press under the jurisdiction of juries, it brought about the law which relieved Roman Catholics of civil disabilities, it reformed the system of representation, and his work enlarged the civil liberties of the race.

The costumes used in the entertainment are intended to be part of the great object lesson in history. They are elaborate and gorgeous, of silks, satins and velvets, costing nearly $3,000. The Scottish soldiers' suits made in Glasgow, Scotland for Mrs. Monroe alone costing $400. In the summer of 1900 Mrs. Monroe visited the Paris Exposition and the costume of each lady in the third scene (the scene in which the crown is offered to Cromwell) is a reproduction of the costume worn by some great women contemporary with Cromwell. Marie de Medici, Annie of Austria, Henrietta Maria, etc, the original of these being shown in the Palais de Costume at the Exposition

Rehearsals for the entertainment have been in progress for nearly two weeks and the participants are doing splendid work and will give the production an excellent rendition.

Mrs. H. E. Monroe, of Washington, D. C., the originator and lecturer of the affair is a distinguished woman. For fifteen years she was president of what is now Midland College at Atchison, Kas. She is the author of four books—"The Art of Conversation," "Heroine of the Mining Camp," "Washington, Its Sights and Insights" and "Historical Lutheranism," the last named having been translated into thirteen different languages. In her travels in England, Scotland, Ireland, Germany, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, France, Switzerland and Italy she has seen most crowned heads of Europe, including the late Pope Leo XIII by whom she with other Americans was received.

The entertainment will begin promptly at eight o'clock. Chart for reserved seats opens Friday morning, Sept. 11th, at eight o'clock at H. S. Lloyd's. Following is the elaborate program:

Interesting Letter from Mr. Fee.

Editor Press:—

DEAR SIR:—I was requested by several friends to write The PRESS on my arrival here, how I found things, etc. I left Emporium with feeling of regret, and the last glimpse I had of the town was mixed with a pathetic picture of the gallant Junction ticket seller, anxiously feeling of a spot on his lip where a hair of a future mustache was expected to appear.

I arrived here Tuesday morning, on schedule time, coming in at the magnificent new station of the Rock Island Road which was not completed when I left, getting down onto the street. The rush of cable trains, trolley cars and teams was bewildering, and to cross, loaded down with a well worn grip in one hand and two umbrellas in the other, seemed hopeless, until I realized I must run and "duck" for it, suceedad fairly well, only calling down the wrath of an express driver who shouted something with "rube" mixed up in it at me, I turned and said a few things to him in chofce Chicago-ese, he laughingly admitted his mistake and apologized. I found a few changes, other places and faces so familiar as to make me feel I had not not been away at all; I found the same barber who had told he had solved the problem of beating the races and if some one would only stake him for twenty-five dollors, he would make a hundred thousand before September as he was still shaving people. Presume he could not get any one to stake him. Hunted up our fellow town's boys, Harry and Orlow Jurdan, Orlow had his coat off and hair in his eyes, staring hopelessly at a long column of figures and complaining that they took his appetite away. Harry was keeping things on the move in a big wholesale grocery house. He told me he had generously looked after my pretty little girl, while I had been gone, and had secured first place; that I conld play the gallant to her widow chaperon. such a lovely arrangement—for him. When I went to my old time restaurant for my breakfast of coffee and rolls, I found the three large rolls had shrunk to two small ones, which left a crying need for more, as I brought a country appetite back with me. They have had waiter strikes here all summer and I am going to strike one to—when I get a club heavy enough. I ordered whitefish, without tomato sauce. I got the sause all right, which pored over my fish puts me in about the same kind of humor as does a cup of hot coffee spilled down the back of my neck. I scraped the sauce off and called the waiter's attention to the speckled skin, telling him it was trout. He said it wasn't, they were only freckles the whitefish got from swimming on top of the water in the sun. When I gave the baggage man the check for my big telescope grip, which contianed my worldly possessions, I found both ends burst out, the handle off and a big tare in the top. The baggage man smillingly informed me, it might have been worse. Chicago people are a rushing, generous, optimistic lot, who put up with things which would set people of the east kicking. I am glad to be back but would like to be able to attend the socials and entainments of the Candy Kitchen Club, The Corner Stone Club and others, who always enter so heartilly into everything they do.

Very Truly,

S. J. FEE.

Chicago, Sept. 6th, 1903.

BRIEF MENTION.

Fewer gallons; wears longer; Devoe.

If yon want the best in clothing go to N. Seger's, the Allegheny Avenue clothier.

N. Seger has just returned from New York where he purchased a most handsome line of fall and winter clothing. Call and see him.

Carrie Nation, the saloon buster, has been relinked to her husband. Mr. Nation must be a man of great courage, nerve and endurance.

LOST.—A pig about two months old; been missing about one week. Any information as to its whereabouts will be appreciated by Mrs Michael Hout.

The old reliable clother N. Seger is offering some big inducements in clothing in order to make room for his big fall and winter stock which is arriving almost daily.

The Puget Sound salmon crop is reported to be a total failure. The poor man will have to live on apples, of which the United States has raised a little over a half barrel for every man, woman and child in the country.

Bishop Potter said recently, "You cannot serve your fellow men unless you are willing to touch them." The Bishop evidently has no faith in charity administered with a pair of tongs. He does not regard it as "the greatest of these."

The Rev. Thomas S. Wilcox, D. D., Presiding Elder of the Williamsport District of the Methodist Episcopal Church, together with the pastor of the Cameron Circuit, drove to More Hill, Wednesday 9th, where the "Second Quarterly Conference," of the charge was held. Rev. Wilcox preached a powerful sermon at 7:30 p. m., after which he administered the Communion.

A special collection was lifted with which the trustees purpose purchasing new window lights for the church. The fall amount necessary was raised. This is the begining of needed repairs on the church, which the pastor hopes to make, as well as lift the debt hanging on this charge.

Rufus Young, who died in a Vermont prison the other day from injuries received while being pursued by a sheriff's posse, spent in various penitentiaries more than two-thirds of his 66 years, always under sentence for horse theft.

A North Dakota farmer who went to Minneapolis carrieh $100 under his hatband. In a restaurant another patron changed hats with him, but, after two days, the loser found the other man and swapped back and found his money undisturbed.

After striving for nine years to be appointed a tipstaff in the Luzerne county (Pa.) court, Harry Bullock, aged 54 years, died from joy at attaining the object of his ambition. He was suddenly stricken with heart disease after learning that he had received the coveted job, and the physicians who attended him said that death was caused by syncope resulting from overjoy.

From Calhoun county, Michigan, there comes to the Smithsonian institution a sensational story of the invasion of that county by an army of 5,000 rats in one pack. A big gray rat is said to be leading the vast array of rodents. Michigan papers devote considerable space to the peculiar occurrence, and some Battle Creek citizens who have become interested in the migration have written to the Smithsonian institution for an explanation, if possible.

Senator Foraker, of Ohio, is an enthusiastic fisherman, and recently put in some happy days seeking the coy trout in the neighborhood of Hot Springs, Va. A friend who was with him declares that the senator is one of the luckiest fishermen alive. "In fact," he adds, "no one could convince me that Grover Cleveland himself can land a bigger string in the same time than Joe Foraker. He had no trouble in getting two fish to my one, and I'm no amateur."

The microbes of lockjaw or of other diseases, the venom of snakes, the virus of smallpox or the vegetable poisons may be successfully conveyed upon bullets from muskets or revolvers. Neither the heat nor the friction in firing destroys them, whether they are on the ball, in the powder, in the wad or smeared within the gun barrel. In the powder they are carried on unburnt grains, which make up 40 per cent. in every charge of powder exploded.

The champion money finder is Isaac Banks, of Philadelphia, and he holds the championship because he was, until pensioned off after 58 years of constant service, door-keeper of the vaults of the Fidelity Trust Co. He found and returned to the owners about $2,000,000. His largest find was $100,000, and for its return he got not a cent, while from the loser of a $60,000 roll, which he returned intact, he has never since received anything but studied discourtesy.

Aerial navigation is a certainty of the immediate future, if the plans of an aerial navigation company do not go wrong. When the big ship is completed it is expected to start for New York from San Francisco, where it is now in course of construction. Going as the crow flies, this vessel will make the long journey over mountain tops and plains in 26 hours, if all goes well. It will be 228 feet in length and 56 feet in diameter. Its weight will be 13,000 pounds.

A fatal parasitic disease has been successfully used on a large scale to destroy the grasshoppers, another for locusts, another for rats, and a prize has recently been won for the discovery of an insect which will destroy the cotton bole weevil. These successes make Dr. Stile's proposition to destroy mosquitoes by supplying their larvae with the agamomerms culicis, which now destroy millions of them by developing in their abdomens and making them sterile and short-lived, possible.

Complaints are being made by fishermen of the Chesapeake bay of depredations on the part of the big fishing boats owned and operated by the guano factories in that section. It is declared that these boats with their patent apparatus are driving all the fish out of the Lower Chesapeake. The owners of the fisheries along the coast complain bitterly that the fishing boats take the very best fish in these waters for the fertilizer factories, where good and bad alike are ground up for fertilizers.

TALK OF EXTRA SESSION.

Questions That Will Be Brought Up If One Is Held—No Tariff Legislation Probable.

Possibly the rejection of the Panama canal treaty by Colombia will add one to the number of questions which are to be brought up in the extra session of congress, if one is to be held. That such a session will take place at all is not certain, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. A few weeks ago it was inferred from something said by Senator Lodge after an interview with the president that a session would be called to meet on November 9. This will be the Monday immediately after the state elections, and be four weeks before the time for the beginning of the regular session. Recent rumors are to the effect that a session would be called for some time in October. As this would break into the political canvass, and as there is no apparent urgency anyhow, the chances are that if a session takes place at all it will not open so early as October.

The first of the avowed reasons for the calling of an extra session was to get final action on Cuban reciprocity. Then the finance question was urged as a matter which ought to be taken up in a called session. Some of the democrats, among them Senator Gorman, have been saying that if the extra session takes place they will spring a tariff discussion which will open up that big issue. The failure of the canal treaty may possibly strike the president as an additional reason for the calling of an early session. But whatever may or may not come before congress, should it meet in October or November, no tariff legislation will be attempted in it. Nor will any take place in the regular session. All this is so certain that it may be foretold with the utmost confidence. The republicans are masters of the situation in each branch of congress. All the republican leaders are at harmony on this point, and it would be foolish and mischievous to spring the tariff issue into the national campaign, with the serious demoralization of all sorts of business and the check to all kinds of enterprise which it would cause.

It is pretty safe to say that the Cuban reciprocity matter could be dealt with in the four weeks between November 9 and the opening of the regular session, if there be any necessity to get it out of the way by that time. The question is simple. Whatever divergences there may be between republicans on that issue in any of its phases, they can be adjusted quickly. Whatever sort of a settlement is reached on it will stay settled. Nothing more will be heard of it in the republican party. The democrats will not be able to make any partisan capital out of any disagreements which may arise between republicans on the Cuban matter. In regard to the finances, there is no especial reason for haste. No legislation of any consequence on the finance question is likely to be had in advance of the presidential canvass. The country's financial system is in pretty good shape. There would be an advantage in imparting a little more elasticity to the finances, but some of the plans which are advocated for doing this are so objectionable that the whole subject is likely to go over until after the presidential election. If it were brought up now the democrats would use the occasion to delay action and harass the republican party. There is no especial reason for any monetary legislation at the present time. After the big election passes there will be a better chance to consider the question without any interference to its partisan bearings. The country can wait. If an extra session be held for any purpose it would be better to postpone it until after the states have voted, and for that reason November 9 would be a good date for it to begin.

COMMENTS OF THE PRESS.

☞The democratic party says it desires a change, and yet can't tell what kind of a change.—St. Louis Globe.

☞On election day a republican will come along and knock the Ohio gubernatorial persimmon.—Indianapolis Journal.

☞The worst thing Bryan can do to Cleveland is to insist upon giving him the democratic presidential nomination.—Philadelphia Press.

☞Of course the thought of nominating Hearst for the presidency gives the average democrat the yellow jaundice, but it would not be such a long step from Bryan.—Indianapolis Journal.

☞The Johnson crowd want it to be understood that every democrat who is opposed to Johnson for governor is a bribetaker. This kind of campaigning has been successful in Cleveland, state.—Cleveland Leader.

☞Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, going around the north making speeches telling what the democratic party is going to do next year is helping to make it certain that the democratic party will not be likely to be in a position to do anything.—Troy Times.

☞The newspapers are now calling attention to some of Bryan's ridiculous utterances in his first campaign about the purity of wheat and silver, but the only surprising feature about it is that anything Bryan said should have been remembered.—Philadelphia Press.

☞Col. Henry Watterson has settled the campaign for 1904. Neither Cleveland nor Bryan can be nominated, and if Bryan bolts not a corporal's guard will follow him. The democratic nomination will go to Gorman, Parker or Gray, and whoever is the nominee he will be elected over President Roosevelt, for Col. Watterson is sure that there will be a democratic landslide in 1904, which will slide faster even than that of 1892. If Col. Watterson could only exhibit conclusive evidence of possessing the gift of prophecy, how important his information would be!—Boston Transcript.

NEBRASKA AND BRYAN.

Republicans Exult Over the Rescue of the State from Populistic Tendencies.

The dominant note in the Nebraska republican platform adopted at Lincoln is one of rejoicing over the escape of the state from Bryan and Bryanism.

The Nebraska republicans are republicans, not populists. They are strongly in favor of the Roosevelt policies. They adhere to the protective policy and they regard the Philippines as American territory, says the Chicago Inter Ocean.

In all these things they antagonize Mr. Bryan, who for ten years has been trading on the disappointments and discontent of the western people. Nebraska gave Harrison a plurality of 4,079 for president in 1892. In 1894 the populists united with the democrats and defeated the republican candidate for governor. In 1895 the republicans elected their candidate for supreme court judge, but in 1896 the state gave Bryan a plurality of 12,935 over McKinley, and the legislature came under the control of the fusionists.

In 1897 the fusionists carried the state by a plurality of 13,879, elected their candidate for governor in 1898 by a plurality of 2,721, and their candidate for supreme judge in 1899 by a plurality of 15,107.

That was the last fusion victory in Nebraska. In 1900 the people of the state, with the issue of republicanism against Bryanism before them, gave McKinley a plurality of 7,822, and elected republican state officers, and a republican legislature. The republicans carried the state by 20,000 in 1901, and elected the governor in 1902 by a plurality of 5,355. Nebraska has now republican state officers and a republican legislature, and is represented at Washington by two republican senators and four republicans and one fusionist in the house.

The contrast between republicanism and Bryanism in the state has been very marked. While the Bryanites, or fusionists, were in control of the state government and legislature they went to the extreme of partisanship and disgusted many of their own party by their childish display of party feeling. The Bryanites antagonized Nebraska soldiers, flouted patriotic sentiment, and covered the windows of the capitol with pictures of their candidate for president. They assumed they were the state and substituted party spirit for public policy.

Little wonder is it that the Nebraska republicans exult over the rescue of the state from Bryan and Bryanism.

MR. BRYAN DEFENDED.

Plenty of Reasons Why He Should Not Be Whipped Into the Democratic Fold.

The press of the country is very generally condemning Mr. Bryan for his present course in politics. The eastern democratic papers particularly are blaming him. His stubborn opposition to the plans of those who are seeking to reorganize the party is denounced as unreasonable, illogical and inexcusable. And yet, asks the Kansas City Jorunal (Rep.), who, in Mr. Bryan's place, would do otherwise than Mr. Bryan is doing?

The democratic party failed in the two campaigns in which the Nebraskan was its candidate for the reason that, as Mr. Bryan believes, a number of its prominent leaders were indifferent or hostile to its interests. He suffered the ignominy of defeat and the crushing of his ambitions. Now he finds these same leaders who were responsible for his ruin organizing a movement to repudiate him and his platform and assume the management of the party in its next campaign. What is more natural or reasonable than that he should rebel against such a programme and exert all his strength to defeat it?

Suppose that Mr. Bryan should quietly submit to the plans of the reorganizers. Suppose that he should passively consent to being discredited and humiliated. Suppose that he should give his support to those who overthrew him with their disloyalty when he was the party's candidate. What would be thought of him? He would be despised as a weak and spineless man. Even those to whom he gave way would simply add contempt to their dislike.

Mr. Bryan is now asking no favors at the hands of his party. He has a grudge to pay, and he proposes to pay it. He still has a considerable following and he means to use it for the vindication of himself and his platform. Leaving out of account his abiding faith in the principles which were repudiated by the country and exploded by the logic of events, there are plenty of reasons why Mr. Bryan should refuse to lick the hands that smote him and assent to the programme for their exaltation and his own debasement.

Desperate Democrats.

Evidence is rapidly accumulating of the desperation to which the democratic party is reduced in its search for a promising candidate for the presidency. The Nashville American is the first newspaper organ of that party, however, to make a frank confession of the condition which confronts the democracy. It no longer attempts to define the sort of democrat that is desirable, but sums up in these words: "Anybody to beat Roosevelt!" That is honest, at least, and it undoubtedly sizes up the democratic situation. But the democratic battlecry is not an inspiring one. The party went into the campaign of 1872 with the watchword: "Anybody to beat Grant!" And history records that it received the worst thrashing in its history up to that time, Gen. Grant being reelected by the largest plurality ever given to a president, with the single exception of that of McKinley in 1900.—Troy Times.

CRAZED BY LOVE.

Sensational Murder and Suicide in New York City.

Because She Refused to Elope With Him Henry T. Edson, Son of a Former Mayor of New York, Killed Mrs. Pullen and Took His Own Life.

New York, Sept. 3.—Henry Townsend Edson, son of an ex-mayor of New York, Franklin Edson, in his apartments at 292 West Ninety-second street, yesterday shot and instantly killed Mrs. Fannie Pullen, of 673 West End avenue, and then shot and killed himself. The murder and suicide appear to have been premeditated and followed a dramatic scene in which Edson called upon Mrs. Pullen, a close and honored friend of his wife and family, to desert her husband and children and fly with him to another state. Mrs. Pullen, a very handsome woman, is said to have been the daughter of a United States naval officer.

The double tragedy brought to the surface the fact that Edson, who was "comptroller" of St. Michael's Protestant Episcopal church, had been suspected of misappropriating funds belonging to the parish and that expert accountants were at work on his accounts. It was also declared by those related to the family that Edson was financially distressed because of Wall street speculation.

Whatever may have been the precise cause of the tragedy, members of the Edson family insist that the man was insane. There are many indications that Edson was madly in love with Mrs. Pullen. On the body of the man was found the following letter:

"Mrs. Pullen: Darling: Trust John implicitly. He will always be a go-between and faithful. I know him thoroughly. He will tell you where I am waiting for you, to see your sweet face once more before I go. I am going far, far away, but will be true to you, no matter how long I live. I shall lead a new life and an honest one, and if I can ever come back to you with my past cleaned up, I will, dearest. Oh, my God, let me see and speak to you once more before I go. I cannot go until you do. I hope and pray that you put in today's (September 1) personal. Any way I answered it in tomorrows. I hope you see it."

The following "personal" was published in a morning newspaper Tuesday:

"Be Loyal—Nothing in answer to message; be good to me; worried about you; send word today; just as true to you as always; with love."

The following, evidently a reply to the foregoing, appeared Wednesday morning:

"Fanny—I am loyal and true; cannot go till I see you; trust John; he will tell you where I am; with love."

These are believed to be the "personals" referred to. Dr. Peters, of St. Michael's church, who knew the dead man well, is emphatic in his declaration that none but the most honorable relations existed between Edson and Mrs. Pullen. She was, he said, Edson's "friend and adviser."

Mrs. Pullen lived with her husband, John Pullen, an auditor at the Grand Central station, and her two children.

The Edsons were to break up their home yesterday, as a result of an agreement to separate.

BY ACCLAMATION.

Pennsylvania Democrats Meet in Convention and Nominate State Ticket.

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 3.—The democratic state convention yesterday nominated the following ticket by acclamation:

Auditor General—Senator Arthur C. Dewalt, of Lehigh county.

State Treasurer—Senator Joel G. Hill, of Wayne county.

Judges of the Superior Court—Ex-Judge Calvin Reyburn, of Armstrong county, and John A. Ward, of Philadelphia.

The platform adopted is briefer than the usual democratic declaration of principles and is devoted entirely to state issues. The greater part of it deals with the last legislature and its work and the conduct of the state government.

The convention was well attended for an "off year" in state politics. The campaign will be conducted by Chairman J. K. P. Hall, of the state committee, from the headquarters in this city. The nominees for auditor general and state treasurer and Senator Webster I. Grim, of Bucks county, permanent chairman of the convention, were members of the last legislature and voted against the Grady-Salus libel bill, which will be one of the principal issues in the campaign.

Beldame Won a Big Stake.

New York, Sept. 3.—August Belmont's Beldame, with Bullman in the saddle, won the rich Great Filly stakes, $16,000, at Sheepshead Bay yesterday. She was quoted at 15 to 1 in the betting and ran the six furlongs over the Futurity course in 1:21 4-5. P. H. McCarren's Ocean Tide was second, with Mineola, from the W. C. Whitney stable, third.

A Disaster at Sea.

Constantinople, Sept. 3.—Three explosions occurred yesterday on the Austrian steamer Vaskapu soon after leaving the Bulgarian port of Burgas en route for Constantinople, by which 29 persons perished. The vessel caught fire and had to be beached.

Big Output of Coal.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 3.—During the month of August last the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Coal Co.'s output of coal at the Woodward colliery, near here, was 64,000 tons, being the largest tonnage ever mined by any single colliery in the Wyoming region. From the present outlook and what can be learned, all the mines in this valley will continue to work full time during this year and the officials do not look for any curtailment order. There may be a few idle days during the present month, but there will not be many.

ARMED WITH A REVOLVER.

A Lunatic Makes a Persistent Demand to See President Roosevelt—Said He Wanted to Marry Miss Alice.

Oyster Bay, L. I., Sept. 3.—A man giving his name as Frank Weilbrenner was arrested at Sagamore Hill late Tuesday night while making a persistent demand to see President Roosevelt. The man was armed with a revolver fully loaded. He was taken to the village and placed in the town prison.

Weilbrenner is five feet eight inches high, 28 years old, has a dark moustache, black eyes and evidently is of German descent. He resides in Syosset, about five miles inland from Oyster Bay. He was well dressed. It is thought by the officers that Weilbrenner was accompanied by two other men, as their footprints were found in the mud alongside of the buggy tracks. In view of this fact the officer on duty telephoned to the village for assistance and was soon joined by two other secret service men.

Weilbrenner was arraigned before Justice Franklin on complaint of the secret service operative who placed him under arrest. Justice Franklin questioned the prisoner about his movements Tuesday night.

His replies were made in a quiet tone of voice, but they indicated, apparently beyond doubt, that the man is crazy. Asked why he went to Sagamore Hill, he replied: "I went to see the president about his daughter, Alice."

"Had you an engagement with the president?"

"Yes."

"How was that engagement made?"

"I talked with the president last night," replied Weilbrenner.

"How did you talk with him?"

"Oh, I just talked."

"A sort of wireless talk was it?"

"Yes, that is it, a wireless talk."

"Why did you want to see the president about Miss Alice?"

"I wanted to marry her."

The examination of Weilbrenner was continued by Dr. George A. Stewart and Dr. Irving S. Barnes. Weilbrenner was declared by them to be insane. He will be placed immediately in the custody of Sheriff Johnson, of Nassau county.

The Weilbrenner incident is the first occurrence of the kind during the president's sojourn at Sagamore Hill. It has demonstrated completely, in the opinion of officials here, the wisdom of the close and systematic guard which is maintained at all times over the president.

He is exposed frequently to assault, but every care that human agencies can devise is exercised constantly to insure his personal safety and immunity from danger. Personally he was not perturbed by the Weilbrenner incident, but, although the maintenance of the guard is often distasteful to him he thoroughly realizes the necessity of having made as certain as possible the personal safety of the president of the United States.

SENT TO JAIL.

An Assistant State's Attorney and Two Policemen Punished for Contempt by a Chicago Judge.

Chicago, Sept. 3.—In a habeas corpus case growing out of the arrest for the second time of Walter B. Hoyt on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses in defiance of an order of Judge Cavanaugh in the criminal court, the latter yesterday ordered the arrest for contempt of Assistant State's Attorney Barnett and sentenced him to ten days' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $50. Thomas J. Howard, detective, and Officer Louis Houllion, of Cincinnati, were also committed for ten days.

Hoyt was charged with being a fugitive from justice and upon the hearing of the habeas corpus case the officers attempted to serve a governor's warrant upon him in the court room, although warned by the judge not to do so. Assistant State's Attorney Barnett explained that he advised the arrest of Hoyt upon the executive warrant.

"You assumed that the court did not know what he was talking about and advised the officers to act in defiance of court," exclaimed Judge Cavanaugh with spirit.

"Mr. Barnett, although you are a friend of mine, I can make no exception in your case. I will sentence you to jail for ten days and then pay in addition a fine of $50."

Another Merger.

Pittsburg, Sept. 3.—The Post says: Another merger of underlying companies of the United States Steel Corporation is to take place in a short time, following the decision to build the great tube plant at Lorain, O. This will be the taking over of the present Lorain steel works, which were formerly an adjunct of the Federal Steel Co., and making it a part of the National Tube Co. The Lorain works manufactures girder rails and has two blast furnaces in operation, each with a capacity of about 550 tons a day.

Parry Makes a Threat.

Indianapolis, Sept. 3.—When asked last night as to the rumor that he was receiving threatening letters warning him to cease his attacks on organized labor, President D. M. Parry, of the National Manufacturers' association, said: "All I have to say is that the man or men who enter my premises to abduct any of my children will leave the place dead, for that is the order given the men at my home."

Both Sides Made Concessions.

Philadelphia, Sept. 3.—The conference between the Pennsylvania railroad telegraphers and General Manager Atterbury relative to certain demands made by the operators came to an end yesterday after concessions had been made by both side. A compromise proposition was submitted to the operators that all operators on divisions east of Pittsburg and Erie, whether working 8 or 12-hour shifts, be given a relief of one day per month with pay; operators at present receiving two days a month relief to continue to receive the same.

SLAUGHTER CONTINUES.

Macedonia Rebels Claim to be Fighting for Human Rights — Turkish Brutality and Treachery.

Sofia, Sept. 4.—A council presided over by Prince Ferdinand and attended by the premier and the ministers of the interior, war and justice was held at the palace of Euxinograd, near Varna, yesterday. The announcement of the result of the deliberations is anxiously awaited here.

The insurgent general staff has issued a proclamation throughout Macedonia asking for the support of the whole population and pointing out that the revolutionaries are not fighting for a neighboring power, but for human rights.

More fighting is reported from the district of Debre. The Turks attacked revolutionaries at the village of Dambeni and both sides suffered heavy losses. A company of Albanian troops passing through the valley of Kitschero was slaughtered by revolutionaries. The Turkish troops recently made an attempt to take a pass occupied by insurgents through the valley of the Sateska river, but were defeated with great loss.

London, Sept. 4.—The Turkish embassy here sent out last night a notice published by the Ottoman government in the vilayets of Adrianople, Salonica, Kossovo and Monastir, warning the population against joining the insurgents.

The Daily Mail's correspondent in a dispatch from Monastir, dated August 31, tells of an ineffectual attempt he made to penetrate the Albanian cordon and reach Armensko. He was threatened with death and compelled to return under a guard. He gives numerous instances of Turkish brutality and treachery. The villagers of Armensko were massacred before a single insurgent visited the place. The inhabitants of the village of Nevolkas were butchered while on their way to Florina under guard, after having surrendered on a guarantee of immunity. At Florina, continues the correspondent, the Christians are in a state of abject fear and are handicapped by a bigoted Greek metropolitan who orders them to stay in the village and not to flee, with the result that the savage soldiery murder them by scores. The European residents of Monastir, including the consuls, are in a state of great anxiety.

Constantinople, Sept. 4.—Official reports say that the Turks on reoccupying Klissura, Albania, killed 200 insurgents. It is also stated that the inhabitants of the coast villages are returning to their homes.

Salonica, Sept. 4.—Hilmi Pasha, inspector general of Macedonia, has telegraphed from Monastir that a Bulgarian band was defeated September 1, between Klissura and Kastoria, with heavy loss. The remainder of the band is being pursued by the Turks.

Bucharest, Roumania, Sept. 4.—M. Svetkoff, the agent here of the Macedonian committee, has been arrested for extorting, by menaces of death, subscriptions to the funds of the revolutionists.

The Bulgarians residing in Roumania continue to receive orders to return home, in view of the possible mobilization of the Bulgarian forces.

GRAND CIRCUIT RACES.

Four Great Events Decided at Narragansett Park—Star Hal and Billy Buck Win Big Prizes.

Providence, R. I., Sept. 2.—Perfect weather and track conditions favored the opening in this city yesterday of the grand circuit meeting and 9,000 people who gathered at Narragansett park witnessed four superbly contested races. It was an off day for favorites, Diablito in the 2:20 pace being the only one of the picked horses to win.

The 2:06 pace with a field of eight starters was marred by an accident in which Kenny, driver of Prince Direct, was severely injured by being thrown from his seat.

The 2:19 trot with eight starters went over unfinished after six heats had been trotted, Navidad and Cole Direct each having two heats, while Kamares and Guy Fortune had one each to their credit.

The 2:20 pace required five heats to decide. Mary Anna took the first two heats in fast time, only to lose the race to Diablito, a bay mare, owned in New York, who captured the next three heats and race in sensational style.

Providence, R. I., Sept. 3.—Fifteen thousand persons attracted by the principal contest of the grand circuit meeting here—the $10,000 stake for 2:11 class pacers—gathered yesterday at Narragansett park and saw Star Hal, a horse owned by W. L. Snow, of Hornellsville, N. Y., capture the race and the purse in three straight heats. Seven horses faced the starter, King Direct being favorite, with Elastic Pointer second choice.

Providence, R. I., Sept. 4.—The Roger Williams $10,000 stake for 2:14 trotters was the feature of the third day's racing in the grand circuit meeting at Narragansett park. Billy Buck, a bay gelding owned and driven by E. F. Geers, of Memphis, Tenn., carried off the big purse, wining in three straight heats. Sadie Baron captured the first heat in the 2:15 pace, and although she battled hard with Trilby Direct to the end, she was unable to head the black filly, who took the remaining heats and the race. Sensational finishes marked the 2:08 pace, which was won by Albert G. Dillon Boy won the 2:18 trot.

Will Have to Pay Their Fare.

Chicago, Sept. 2. — Stockman throughout the west who have for many years been enjoying free transportation from their homes and the shipping centers, will find this privilege curtailed after January 1, 1904, The executive officials of western lines met here Tuesday and agreed that on and after the date mentioned they would discontinue the issuance to stockmen of transportation, thereby compelling them to pay their fare to their homes after having come to the various shipping centers with stock.

Scene of Pope Pius' Boyhood Days

Early Environments at Riesi Reflected in After Life—Young Sarto Then Was Very Poor, But Happy—His Relatives Are Still Peasant Residents of the Little Town.

ALL the world knows that Pope Pius X. was born in the little village of Riesi, provice of Treviso, district of Castelfranco, Italy, but perhaps very few have considered the influence that such a birthplace has had on the life of the present pope.

Young Sarto was the favorite of everybody in his birthplace. He had a peculiar knack of making and keeping friends. He could join with the youngsters in their games, talk with the tradesmen, argue politics with the townsmen or discuss some point in philosophy or theology with the parish priest.

So was he in his subsequent career, and when he was a simple, humble priest and when cardinal and prince of the church he was constantly surrounded by a group of friends. And among his personal friends and admirers was the small group that in the last conclave, after the first ballots, drew attention to his name.

MOTHER OF POPE PIUS X.
(Humble Woman, Who Perferred Obscurity to Elegance.)

A visit to Riesi at the present time is indeed an interesting experience. There stands the humble little house where the Sartos lived and where the present pope was born. It is a two-story affair, plain in structure, with square windows heavily barred and blinded. The entrance is unpretentious, the double wooden doors without glass, which plainly show their structure of rough unmatched boards, remind one of the doors on the commonest American stable. There is a small court in front and a pathway of rough stones skirts the house on its border.

The popes mother, who is now dead, always refused to live with her son Giuseppe when he was elevated in the offices of the church from a spirit of humility, saying that even his modest establishment was considered by her to be too luxurious in comparison with what she was accustomed to.

In one part of Riesi is the Spade inn. This modest little haven for travelers is kept by Cornelia, one of the pope's sisters, and her husband, Giovanni Parolin. Here he always stayed when he visited his relatives at Riesi and a special room was reserved for his use.

It is a plain, low-ceilinged little room with a miniature of the Madonna on the wall. The bed is a large double one of plain wood, and by its side is a small table with a crucifix on it. A plain wooden chair is the only other furniture.

Amelia Giovanni, her husband and children are the working force of the inn and the pope's sister spends most of her time in the kitchen, for she is an exceptionally good cook.

The pope has never tried to secure advancement for any of his relatives and has allowed his family to continue in the modest line of life to which they were born, saying that they would be happier when they depended on their own energies and resources.

Three of his sisters are spinsters. One of the others, Antonia, is married to a man so poor that she must support the family by dressmaking. Lucia is the wife of a sexton, who is occasionally a hawker, and the husband of the third sister keeps a little tobacco shop. One of the maiden sisters was housekeeper at the patriarch's palace in Venice.

At the end of a broad street in the pope's birth town stands the parish church where the young Father Sarto said his first mass. It is a large structure, with imposing spire. Near by Riesi is Castelfranco, home of the great master, Giorgione. Here Pope Pius was consecrated a priest. He was especially fond of the magnificent cathedral of Castelfranco.

The older brother of the pope, Angelo, lives in the village of Dellegrazie, province of Mantua, being the postman of this district and receiving $80 a year for his duties. He adds to his income by keeping a shop, in which he sells tobacco and pork. He has two pretty daughters.

When Pius X. was bishop of Mantua his brother Angelo used often to go there for reasons connected with his postal service. The other clerks would ask him jokingly why his brother did not find him a better position. Angelo, with sturdy independence, answered that he preferred only to be what he could make himself. Still, following papal precedence, the tobacconist and postman of Dellegrazie should become a Roman count.

The new pope is the seventh to come from the region of Venice. Among these popes was Benedict XII., who also came from Treviso, and who was elected pope 599 years ago.

ADMIRAL TELLS STORY.

Yankee Scheme to Fool the Hens Unfolded to Dewey by a Chinese Newspaper.

Admiral Dewey was a prominent figure at the Saratoga races. Usually he occupied a box. One afternoon a little party of farmers came up to shake hands with him, and thereafter naturally the talk turned to agriculture.

"When I was in the Philippines," said Admiral Dewey, "an American resident brought me one day a Chinese paper. He said this paper would interest me because it contained an account of an American invention. Then, with a smile, he translated a paragraph that ran something like this:

"'The ingenuity of the Yankee is typified well in a hen's nest that he has recently invented and patented. This nest increases the laying capacity of the hens to an unlimited degree. In the bottom of it there is a trap door, governed by a delicate spring. The hen lays an egg, the weight of which causes the trap door to open, whereupon the egg drops down into a subterranean compartment, and the door closes very swiftly and silently again. The hen gets up, turns to look at the egg, but sees none there. So she decides that she must be mistaken in thinking she had laid, and sits down again and deposits another egg, which, like the predecessor, disappears. The process continues indefinitely.'"

A Natural Conclusion.

A SENATOR'S ROMANCE.

W. B. Heyburn, of Idaho, Weds His Boyhood Sweetheart in Old Pennsylvania.

A romance extending over a quarter of a century came to a happy climax recently in Philadelphia, when United States Senator Weldon Breyton Heyburn, of Idaho, was married to Mabel

WELDON B. HEYBURN.
(United States Senator from Idaho Hero of a Romance.)

Geraldine Yeatman, of Chester county, Pennsylvania, sweetheart of his boyhood and divorced wife of Dr. Pyle, of that state. Years ago Miss Yeatman and young Heyburn, both Pennsylvanians of Quaker ancestry, were sweethearts. In 1884 the young lawyer came west to make his fortune and settled in Idaho. He became a leader, acquired wealth and at the last session of the Idaho legislature was elected senator. Meanwhile Miss Yeatman had married, but unhappily. She obtained a divorce. Senator Heyburn renewed his suit with such success that his sweetheart, who had resumed her maiden name, accepted him.

When Senator Heyburn appeared at the office of the clerk of the orphans' court in Philadelphia to obtain a marriage license the instrument was temporarily refused him because he was unable to answer certain facts about the divorce of his intended wife. Later the license was issued and the marriage took place.

An Index of Prosperity.

According to Dun's Index the value of articles used by the average person in the United States during the last year, if bought at wholesale, was $93.83. The year before it was $101.91. These figures correspond closely to those of 1888 and 1889. Two years ago the amount was $91.50.

CUP REMAINS HERE

American Yacht Reliance Won All the Races.

In Last Event Shamrock was Three Miles Astern — She Missed the Finish Line in the Fog and Returned to It from the Opposite Direction.

New York, Sept. 4.—The Reliance, the American cup defender, on Thursday won the third and final race and the series for that famous sea trophy, the America's cup. In a dense fog which prevented vision beyond 200 yards she finished the race at 5:30, amid the acclamations of the assembled fleet. Shamrock III after running for more than an hour in the fog, missed the finish line, passed by CAPT. BARR.

(Commander of the Cup Defender, Reliance.)

it and then returned to it from the opposite direction. As the Reliance was then being towed through the fleet, yacht ensigns fluttering from her truck and spreaders in celebration of her victory, the Shamrock III did not cross the finish line. As often said of the historic race when the America won the cup, there was no second. The Reliance was about three miles ahead.

This successful result was achieved only after four futile attempts to sail off the final race and after the outcome had been admitted by even Sir Thomas Lipton to be a foregone conclusion. Yesterday's was the eighth attempt to sail a race. After one fluke the Reliance won the two following races, one by seven minutes and three seconds and the other by one minute and 19 seconds. A week ago yesterday the first attempt to sail the third race failed, and attempts have been made every day this week. On two occasions the Reliance led the Shamrock III to the finish line by about two miles, but failed to reach it before the expiration of the time limit of five and a half hours. Thursday's victory means that the cup is destined to remain in America until England is able to produce a genius equal to Herreshoff in yacht designing.

Rarely if ever has there been a more spectacular finish than the Reliance's. After racing for more than a hour at terrific speed through a blinding fog, the Reliance burst through the wall of mist upon the vision of the spectators on the fleet assembled at the finish line and, heeling under a great bellying balloon jib topsail until her lee rail was awash, fled across the finish line almost before the spectators could determine for a certainty that it was she. Once more the Yankee boat had added to the long string of victories in contests for the honored old silver trophy that carried with it the blue ribbon of the sea.

Highlands, Nevsink, N. J., Sept. 4.—When the Erin had discharged her passengers last night and the re-echo of their cheers had died away, Sir Thomas Lipton said: "Two weeks ago I was hopeful; last week I knew I was doomed to defeat and was disappointed, but today I am almost glad in my own defeat, America has been such a thoroughly generous victor. I want again to thank the American people for their generosity to me in my defeat."

Asked what his plans were, Sir Thomas said:

"My crew is to return to England on Tuesday next and I really ought to go back by that time myself. I will arrange my engagements in a day or two. I shall attend a dinner in New York to-morrow night and have half promised to be Mr. Woodruff's guest in Brooklyn and go to the New York state fair, but that is not absolutely certain. It is possible I may have to start for home next week."

London, Sept. 4.—The final defeat of Sir Thomas Lipton's cup challenger Shamrock III was received in London with absolute listlessness.

The consensus of opinion is that Sir Thomas Lipton has done everything that time and money could accomplish and widespread sympathy for him is shown. The chief hope expressed in the streets is that Canada will enter the lists next year and possibly succeed where the mother country has failed.

Frisco Wants the Next Race.

San Francisco, Sept. 4.—The California promotion committee has sent a telegram to the president of the New York Yacht club inviting the club to select San Francisco harbor as the next course for the defense of the America's cup.

Engineer Foiled the Holdup Men.

Great Falls, Mont., Sept. 4—What is believed to have been an attempt to hold up express No. 151 on the Great Northern railroad, almost within the city limits of Great Falls, was foiled Wednesday night by the engineer, who ran his train by the spot where it was to have been halted, so fast that the robbers could not get at him. Just east of the city the engineer saw figures by the side of the track in the darkness. Some one shouted something, but the engineer paid no attention. There was a shot and a ball passed within a foot of his head and smashed a glass in the cab.

CAUSED A PANIC.

The Boiler in a Chemical Factory Explodes and Six Men are Badly Injured.

Newark, N. J., Sept. 4.—A boiler explosion which caused a panic for a time in the business center of the town occurred Thursday in the engine room of the Hanson Van Winkle Co., manufacturers and dealers in acids, chemicals and dyestuffs. Six men were badly injured as a result of the explosion and damage to the extent of $10,000 was done. The injured are: Joseph Winter, engineer, scalded. Charles Connelly, scalded. Howard Carver, injured internally. William Wicklehouse, terribly scalded; may die. Albert Dixon, scalded and cut face and arms. James Thompson, contused wounds and bruises.

Winters was a temporary engineer, serving in place of the regular engineer. He was blown through a partition.

The boiler went up through the ceiling. On the floor directly over the boiler room Wicklehouse and Dixon were at work. The floor of this room was cut from the walls almost as though with a saw, and the wreckage with the men in it fell back into the boiler room. Connelly, Oliver and Thompson were employed in an adjoining room, which was also wrecked.

Two pieces of the boiler, weighing 100 pounds and 50 pounds respectively, crashed through the roof of the Evening News building. They fell into the composing room, where many men were working. The hundred pound piece kept on, going through the floor of the composing room into the editorial department, and, although no one was injured, something of a panic followed the crash.

SIX MEN KILLED.

Bad Wreck Near Yorkville, S. C.—Passenger Train Tumbled Into a Creek —Accident Caused by Collapse of a Bridge.

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 4.—Six persons were killed and 25 injured, one fatally and two seriously in a wreck on the Southern railway near Yorkville, S. C., about noon Thursday. The dead:

Engineer Briskman.
Fireman Frederick R. Hine.
Postal Clerk Smith.
Three unknown negroes.

The injured:

Julius Johnson, Rockville, S. C., probably fatally.

W. L. Slaughter, Hickory Grove, S. C., seriously.

T. C. Hicks, Lancaster, S. C., seriously.

In addition 19 other white persons and three negroes residing mainly in South Carolina towns were bruised but not seriously hurt.

All the bodies have been taken from the wreck, save those of the engineer and fireman.

The wreck was caused by the collapse of a trestle 40 feet high over Wishing creek.

Uncle Sam Stands Pat.

Washington, Sept. 4.—Additional instructions have been cabled Mr. Beaupre, the American minister at Bogota, reiterating the position of this government regarding the canal treaty. Minister Beaupre's latest instructions advise him that President Roosevelt will not enter into any engagement with the Colombian government which will hamper his scope of action under the canal law. This government will not indicate what its course of action will be in the event the treaty is rejected.

Echoes from Sea Girt.

Sea Girt, N. J., Sept. 4.—A heavy for which enveloped the entire range here Thursday afternoon ended all work before the targets and prevented the competitors finishing the inter-state regimental match and the New Jersey national guard match. The competitions were begun early in the morning and only one of them, the Columbia trophy match, was concluded. The team representing the First New Jersey regiment finished in first place with a total of 262 out of a possible 300.

Deadlocked.

Pittsfield, Pa., Sept. 4.—The board of conciliation yesterday decided to hold its next session at Philadelphia, beginning September 15. The board was deadlocked on the questions of a short Saturday and the payment of the 10 per cent. increase on the net earnings of miners. These questions will likely be submitted to Umpire Wright, who, it is said, favors a reconvening of the strike commission to decide the problems now piling up on him.

The Motor Balked.

Widewater, Va., Sept. 4.—Efforts to launch Prof. Samuel P. Langley's 60-foot man-carrying aerodrome had to be abandoned last evening, owing to the failure of the gasoline motor to work properly. For four hours Prof. Manley, the inventor's right hand man, labored hard to get the mechinery in shape. He was unsuccessful. The trouble was caused by a broken valve in the engine.

Trolley Magnates are Acquitted.

Newark, N. J., Sept. 4.—In the trial of the directors and officials of the North Jersey Street Railway Co., on a charge of manslaughter for last February's grade crossing accident, the court yesterday directed a verdict of acquittal of all the defendants.

Claimed His Second Victim.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 4.—The "Loop the Loop" side show at the fair grounds claimed its second victim yesterday. Frank Futzin, the latest man to try the dangerous experiment, was injured and may die. The operator curls himself inside a large ball which rolls down a long chute and around the loop. The ball struck the loop all right and went half way around it when it fell, striking the iron rafters at the bottom and burst open. Putzin was taken out in an unconscious condition. On Tuesday a young girl who tried the trip was badly injured.

EDITORIAL MENTION.

According to present indications the next naval review is scheduled to come off at Beirut.

Sir Thomas Lipton has furnished the American people with a fine example of a good loser.

Mr. Carnegie is buying fossils for his museum but he never had any use for them in his business.

The public is anxiously awaiting Senator Gorman's announcement as to what he will do now that Mr. Bryan has said "he wont do."

Kokoma, Indiana, reported that it is infested with women burglars. Can it be said that the gentler sex has forced open another door of opportunity?

The Ohio Democrats have declared for freee silver at a ratio of 16 to 1. There was bound to be freshness about a Tom Johnson platform.

The Brittanic, only twenty-nine years old and once a record breaker, is being broken up at Bremen. This indicates how short lived are vessels of modern times.

Recent developments in Indian Territory indicate that the "Great White Father" needs to look after the interests of his red children who are once more being unmercifully robbed.

It looks as though Secretary Hitchook would have great difficulty in demonstrating that Congress intended to make him the individual trustee for the Kiowatowsite funds.

President Palma has written a letter to President Roosevelt expressing gratification that Congress will soon convene in special session to perfect the ratification of the Cuban reciprocity treaty.

There are now indications of harmony among the financial experts dealing with the proposed legislation on that subject and again it appears that democrats laughed to soon.

The experts tell us that at two years of age the child's head measure and chest measure should be the same. About thirty years later the child begins to have trouble to keep his waist measure down to his chest measure and some men have the same difficulty with their head measure.

President Roosevelt went to Oyster Bay to rest. Since he arrived there he has consulted seven cabinet officers, one diplomat, two governors, nine senators and five clerks, four lawyers, six financiers, nine soldiers and twenty-one assorted notables. Such a vacation would put many men out of the race.

Letter to Sheriff Swope.

Emporium, Pa.

Dear Sir: The Trustees of Fair Ground, Cobleskill, N. Y., were glad to pay 15 cents a gallor more for Devoe; and no wonder. Two other paint agents said it would take 150 gallons of their paint to cover the buildings.

Our agents put it at 125 or less. It took 115.

We saved then 35 gallons of paint and painting (worth $4 to $5 a gallon, as the painting costs two or three times as much the paint) less 15 cents a gallon on 115 gallons. Say $140.

That's how to count the cost of paint. The cost of putting it on is $3 or $4 a gallon, You see what that means. Go by Devoe.

Yours truly,
F. W. DEVOE & Co.

P. S. Murry & Coppersmith sell our paint.

A Halt in Corporation Improvement s

PITTSBURG, September 6.

The Post to-day says.

According to well-matured plans, not only of the great railway corporations of the country, but of the larger investors of capital in building operations, there is likely to be a general cessation of building operations in 1904, which will make that year memorable to the trades interested.

The statement of one of the largest contracting concerns in the country connected with railway construction work is the basis for the assertion that at least $180,000,000 worth of building operations proposed for 1904 have actually been called off, and plans have been recalled from architects and engineers

TO UNDERTAKE NO NEW WORK.

It is also said by the same authority that, so far as known, there will be nothing in the shape of new work undertaken the coming year, and when the present contracts are completed a period of waiting will ensue.

It will be a waiting for the general labor situation to settle down, and the end of the factional wars and strikes that have almost destroyed confidence in building.

PENNSY TO STOP IMPROVEMENTS.

The same information is that the Pennsylvania Railway which now has enormous improvements under way and contemplates at least as much more, or $50,000,000, during 1904, has decided to withdraw all of those plans and do nothing further with them until there is a more placid condition of the labor market.

Information given out shows that in New York alone there is at least $60,000,000 of new buiding for 1904 involved in the general plan of withdrawal.

$70,000,000 TIE-UP IN CHICAGO.

In Chicago, where the labor troubles have been continuous for months, it is said that more than $70,000,000 of new work has been abandoned.

In this city Henry Phipps has declared that he would not turn another stone in the city except where operations have already been started.

The delay in the extensive improvements contemplated by H. C. Frick has been stated to be due entirely to the unreliable state of the labor field, and a similiar condition is said to exist with the H. W. Oliver improvements not already begun.

THE CHAMPION MIXED PAINT

Sold by L. TAGGART has no superior.

Fourteen years ago I painted my house with these paints and am now, for the first time since, repainting it. H. L. Smith, the painter, says he never knew of a house in better condition for painting after having stood so long.

A gentleman, whose name I will not mention, living in our town, painted his house thirteen years ago, with these paints and he has engaged some paints to repaint, saying that he would have no other.

Dr. Heilman will also testify as to the merits of these paints. County jail painted four years ago. John Lind's two houses painted two years ago and many others, all speak for the virtue and staying qualities of these paints, and is better evidence than any man's word. Look at them; then buy the Champion paints and paint your house and be happy.

Also paper your house with the elegant wall paper at Taggart's and be doubly happy.

Don't advertise; it is a bad plan. It will call attention to your business and it is much better for people to hunt you up. It gives your customers exercise and makes them healthy. Besides, if you advertise, somebody will buy up all your goods and then you will have to buy more and that will be a great bore to you.—Ex.

What is the United States coming to? A newspaper in Rutland, Vermont, recites the fact that within five weeks there have been five cases of felonious assault on little girls and unwisely adds, "A lynching or two in this state would not only be no disgrace but would be the removal of disgrace." Why is it that people will insist on committing a crime to assuage crime? It only proves that the same murderous desire possesses the heart of the aveanger as that of the assassin only in a different way of manœuvring. If our influential citizens would make as determined a stand for the enforcement of the law as the lynchers do to carry out their unlawful designs, no doubt crime would be greatly lessened.

A WILD-WOOD IDYL.

Seeking wild-wood, open sky,
Blithe beneath the trees am I;
Watching squirrel chattering high,
Watching wood-dove cooing nigh—
Bliss to tread the forest way
Along trails where rabbits stray,
Greeting quail in ferny spray,
Hearing veery's tender lay;
Joy to watch the brooding bird,
Chirping nestling faintly heard.
Downy feather lightly stirred—
Soothing note from mother bird.

Child of nature, joyous, free,
Seeking blossom with the bee,
Tracing brook through flowery lea,
Fringed by reed and willow tree;
Seeking violet hidden low
Where do moss and cresses grow
Beside the rivulet's rippling flow
That through beechen grove doth go;
Plucking trillium, wet with dew,
Frail hepatica, starry blue,
Finding elf's whipporwill shoe,
Hid among the meadow-rue.

Loving twilight, sunset flush—
Seeking haunt of hermit thrush
Trilling sweet at evening hush,
Sheltered by the swaying rush;
In the shadowy green lights dim,
Watching fire-flies winging glim,
Moths fluttering 'round the budding limb,
By weird light from the new-moon's rim,
Dreaming beneath dusky sky,
On soft boughs of fir to lie
Soothed by pine-trees' crooning sigh
Lulled by night winds passing by
Ah! 'tis Nature's child am I.

A Daughter of the Sioux

By GEN. CHARLES KING.

Copyright, 1902, by The Hobart Company.

CHAPTER XIV.

Within 48 hours of the coming of Trooper Kennedy with his "rush" disaptches to Fort Frayne, the actors in our little drama had become widely separated. Webb and his sturdy squadron, including Ray and such of his troop as still had mounts and no serious wounds, were marching straight on for the Dry Fork of the Powder. They were 200 fighting men; and, although the Sioux had now three times that many, they had learned too much of the shooting powers of these seasoned troopers, and deemed it wise to avoid close contact. The Indian fights well, man for man, when fairly cornered, but at other times he is no true sportsman. He asks for odds of ten to one, as when he wiped out Custer on the "Greasy Grass," or Fetteman at Fort Phil Kearney—as when he tackled the Gray Fox—General Crook—on the Rosebud, and Sibley's little party among the pines of the Big Horn. Ray's plucky followers had shot viciously and emptied far too many saddles for Indian equanimity. It might be well in any event to let Webb's squadron through and wait for further accession from the agencies at the southeast, or the big, turbulent bands of Uncapapas and Minneconjus at Standing Rock, or the Cheyennes along the Yellowstone. So back went Lame Wolf and his braves, bearing Stabber with them, flitting northward again toward the glorious country beyond the "Chakadee," and on went Webb, with Blake, Gregg, Ray and their juniors, with Tracy to take care of such as might be wounded on the way; and, later still, the old post surgeon reached the Elk with guards and hospital attendants, and on the morrow began his homeward march with the dead and wounded—a sad and solemn little procession. Only 20 miles he had to go, but it took long hours, so few were the ambulances, so rough the crossings of the ravines; and, not until near nightfall was the last of the wounded—Lieut. Field—borne in the arms of pitying soldiers into the old post hospital, too far gone with fever, exhaustion and some strong mental excitement to know or care that his strange plea had been, perforce, disregarded;—to know or care later that the general himself, the commander they loved and trusted, was bending over him at dawn the following day. Ordering forward all available troops from the line of the railway, "the chief" had stopped at Laramie only long enough for brief conference with the post commander; then, bidding him come on with all his cavalry, had pushed ahead for Frayne. It couldn't be a long campaign, perhaps, with winter close at hand, but it would be a lively one. Of that the chief felt well assured.

Now, there was something uncanny about this outbreak on the part of the Sioux, and the general was puzzled. Up to September the Indians had been busy with the annual hunt. They were fat, well-fed, prosperous—had got from the government pretty much everything that they could ask with any show of reason and, so they said, had been promised more. The rows between the limited few of their young men and some bullies among the "rustlers" had been no more frequent nor serious than on previous summers, when matters had been settled without resort to arms; but this year the very devil seemed to have got into the situation. Something, or probably somebody, said the general, had been stirring the Indians up, exciting—exhorting possibly, and almost the first thing the general did as he climbed stiffly out of his stout Concord wagon, in the paling starlight of the early morning, was to turn to Dade, now commanding the post, and to say he should like, as soon as possible, to see Bill Hay. Meantime he wished to go in and look at the wounded.

It was not yet five o'clock, but Dr. Waller was up and devoting himself to the needs of his patients, and Dade had coffee ready for the general and his single aide-de-camp, but not a sip would the general take until he had seen the stricken troopers. He knew Field by reputation, well and favorably. He had intimately known Field's father in the old days, in the old army, when they served together on the then wild Pacific shores "where rolls the Oregon." The great civil war had divided them, for Field had cast his soldier fortune with his seceding state, but all that was a thing of the past. Here was the son, a loyal soldier of the flag the father had again sworn allegiance to when he took his seat in the house of representatives. The general thought highly of Field, and was sore troubled at his serious condition. He knew what dispatches would be coming from the far south when the telegraph line began the busy clicking of the morning. He was troubled to find the lad in high fever and to hear that he had been out of his head. He was more than troubled at the concern, and something like confusion, in the old doctor's face.

"You don't think him dangerously wounded, do you?" he asked.

"Not dangerously, general," was the reply. "It's—well, he seems to have something on his mind." And more than this the doctor would not say. It was not for him to tell the chief what Webb had confided ere he left the post—that most of the currency for which Field was accountable was so much waste paper. Field lay muttering and tossing in restless misery, unconscious most of the time, and sleeping only when under the influence of a strong narcotic. Dade, with sadness and constraint apparent in his manner, hung back and did not enter the bare hospital room where, with only a steward in attendance, the young soldier lay. The doctor had gone with the general to the bedside, but the captain remained out of earshot at the door.

First call for reveille was just sounding on the infantry bugles as the trio came forth. "I have sent for Hay already, general," Dade was saying, as they stood on the wooden veranda overlooking the valley of the murmuring river; "but will you not come now and have coffee? He can join us over at my quarters."

Already, however, the orderly was hurrying back. They met him when not half way over the line of officers' quarters. The few men for duty in the two companies of infantry, left to guard the post, were gathering in little groups in front of their barracks, awaiting the sounding of the assembly. They knew the chief at a glance, and were curiously watching him as he went thoughtfully pacing across the parade by the side of the temporary commander. They saw the orderly coming almost at a run from the direction of the guard house, saw him halt and salute, evidently making some report, but they could not guess what made him so suddenly start and run at speed toward the southward bluff, the direction of the trader's corral and stables, while Capt. Dade whirled about and signaled Sergt. Crabb, of the cavalry, left behind in charge of the few custodians of the troop barracks. Crabb, too, threw dignity to the winds, and ran at the beck of his superior officer.

"Have you two men who can ride hard a dozen miles or so—and carry out their orders?" was the captain's sharp demand.

"Certainly, sir," answered Crabb, professionally resentful that such a question should be asked of men of the —th cavalry.

"Send two to report to me at once, mounted. Never mind breakfast."

And by this time, apparently, the chief, the post commander and possibly even the aide-de-camp had forgotten about the waiting coffee. They still stood there where they had halted in the center of the parade. The doctor, coming from the hospital, was signaled to and speedily joined them. The bugle sounded, the men mechanically formed ranks and answered to their names, all the while watching from the corner of their eyes the group of officers, now increased by two infantry subalterns, Lieuts. Bruce and Duncan, who raised their caps to the preoccupied general, such salutation being then a fashion, not a regulation of the service, and stood silently awaiting instructions, for something of consequence was surely at hand. Then the orderly again appeared, returning from his mission, out of breath, and speaking with difficulty.

"Craps— I mean the Frenchman, sir, says it was after four, perhaps half past when they started, Pete drivin'. He didn't see who was in it. 'Twas the covered buckboard he took, sir—the best one."

And then, little by little, it transpired that Hay, the post trader whom the general had need to see, had taken his departure by way of the Rawlin's road, and without so much as a whisper of his purpose to anyone.

"I knew he had thought of going. He told Maj. Webb so," said Dade, presently. "But that was before the outbreak assumed proportions. He had given up all idea of it yesterday, and told me so."

"Has anything happened to—start him since then?" demanded the bearded general, after a moment's talk.

Dade and the doctor looked into each other's eyes, and the latter turned away. It was not his affair.

"W—ell, something has happened, general," was Dade's slow, constrained reply. "If you will step this way—I'll see you later, gentlemen—" this to his subalterns—"I'll explain as far as I can."

And while Dr. Waller fell back and walked beside the aide-de-camp, gladly leaving to the post commander the burden of a trying explanation, the general, slowly pacing by the captain's side, gave ear to his story.

"Hay cleaned up quite a lot of money," began the veteran, "and had intended starting it to Cheyenne when this Indian trouble broke out. The courier reached us during the night, as you know, and the major ordered Ray to start at dawn and Field to go with him."

"Why, I thought Field was post adjutant!" interposed the general.

"He was, but—well—I beg you to let Maj. Webb give you his own reasons, general," faltered Dade, sorely embarrassed. "He decided that Field should go——"

"He asked to go, I suppose—it runs in the blood," said the general, quickly, with a keen look from his blue-gray eyes.

"I think not, sir, but you will see Webb within a few days and he will tell you all about it. What I know is this, that Field was ordered to go and that he gave the major an order on Hay for two packages containing the money for which he was accountable. Field and Wilkins had had a falling out, and instead of putting the cash in the quartermaster's safe, Field kept it at Hay's. At guard mounting Hay brought the package to the major, who opened both in the presence of the officers of the day. Each package was supposed to contain $300 or $400. Neither contained $20. Some paper slips inserted between $5 bills made up the packages. Field was then far to the north and past conferring with. Hay was amazed and distressed—said that some one must have duplicate keys of his safe as well as of his stables."

"Why the stables?" asked the chief, pausing at the gate and studying the troubled face of the honored soldier he so well knew and so fully trusted. He was thinking, too, how this was not the first occasion that the loss of public money had been hidden for the time in just that way—slips inserted between good currency.

"Because it transpires that some of his horses were out that very night without his consent or ken. No one for a moment, to my knowledge, has connected Field with the loss of the money. Hay thought, however, it threw suspicion on him, and was mightily upset."

"Then his sudden departure at this time, without a word to anybody looks—odd," said the general, thoughtfully. "But he had no need of money. He's one of the wealthiest men in Wyoming. And she—his wife—needs nothing. He gives her all she can possibly want." By this time they were at the door. A lamp still burned dimly in the hallway, and Dade blew it out, as he ushered the general into the cozily-lighted dining-room.

"You'll excuse Mrs. Dade and Esther, I hope, sir. They are not up yet—quite overcome by anxiety and excitement—there's been a lot about Frayne the last two days—take this chair, general. Coffee will be served at once. No, sir, as you say, the Hays have no need of money—he and his wife, that is."

"But you suspect—whom?" asked the general, the blue-gray eyes intent on the troubled face before him, for Dade's very hesitancy told of some untold theory. The doctor and the aide had taken seats at the other end of the table, and dutifully engaged in low-toned conversation.

"That is a hard question for me to answer, general," was the answer. "I have no right to suspect anybody. We had no time to complete the investigation. There are many hangers-on, you know, about Hay's store, and, indeed, his house. Then his household, too, has been increased as perhaps you did not know. Mrs. Hay's niece—a very brilliant young woman—is visiting them, and she and Field rode together frequently."

The general's face was a study. The keen eyes were reading Dade as a skilled physician would interpret the symptoms of a complicated case. "How old—and what is she like, Dade?" he asked.

"The woman can answer that better than I, sir. They say she must be 24—Mrs. Hay says 19—she is very dark and very—handsome at times. Most of our young men seem to think so, at least. She certainly rides and dances admirably, and Mr. Field was constantly her partner."

The general began to see light. "Field was constantly with her, was he? Riding just by themselves or with others when they went out?" he asked.

"By themselves, sir. I doubt if any other of our equestriennes would care to ride at her pace. She rather outstrips them all. The major told me they seemed to go—well, every time he saw them, at least—up to Stabber's village, and that was something he disapproved of, though I dare say she was simply curious to see an Indian village, as an eastern girl might be."

"Possibly," said the general. "And what did you tell me—she is Mrs. Hay's niece? I don't remember his having any niece when they were at Laramie in '66, though I knew something of Mrs. Hay, who was then but a short time married. She spoke Sioux and patois French better than English in those days. What is the young lady's name?"

"Miss Flower, sir. Nanette Flower."

The chief dropped his head on his hand and reflected. "It's a good 20 years, and I've been knocking about all over the west since then, but I'd like to see Mrs. Hay and that young woman, Dade, whether we overhaul Bill or not. I must go to Beecher at once."

"You will wait for the cavalry from Laramie, will you not, sir?" asked the captain, anxiously.

"I can't. I'll get a bath and breakfast and 40 winks later; then see Mrs. Hay and Bill, if he is back. They ought to catch him before he reaches Sage Creek. There are your couriers now," he added, at the sound of spurred heels on the front piazza.

The captain stepped forth into the hallway. A trooper stood at the front door, his hand lifted in salute. Another, in saddle, and holding the reins of his comrade's horse, was at the gate. A rustle of feminine drapery swept downward from the upper floor, and Dade glanced up, half dreading to see Esther's face. But it was his wife who peered over the balustrade. "I shall be down in ten minutes," she said, in low tone. "Esther is sleeping at last. How did—he—seem this morning?"

"Sleeping, too, but only fitfully. Dr. Waller is here," and then Dade would have ended the talk. He did not wish to speak further of Field or his condition. But she called again, low-toned, yet dominant, as is many a wife in and out of the army.

"Surely you are not letting the general start with only two men!"

"No, he goes by and by." And again Dade would have escaped to the piazza, but once again she held him.

"Then where are you sending these?"

"After Mr. Hay. He—made an early start—not knowing perhaps, the general was coming."

"Start!" she cried, all excitement now. "Start!—Start for where?" and the dressing sacque in aspen-like agitations came in full view at the head of the stairs.

"Rawlins, I suppose. I don't know what it means."

"But I do!" exclaimed his better half, in emotion uncontrollable. "I do! It means that she has made him—that she has gone, too—I mean Nanette Flower!"

ALSO AMERICAN.

The Unsympathetic Blessing Given a Promising Relative by Ralph Waldo Emerson.

When young George Emerson graduated from Harvard, he was the first scholar in his class, and accordingly gave the oration. Dr. Edward Everett Hale tells in his "Memories of a Hundred Years" with what an apparently unsympathetic blessing his cousin, Ralph Waldo Emerson, wished the young man success in life.

The chapel, writes Dr. Hale, contained 200 or 300 of his friends and the friends of his classmates. After the exercises were over, Dr. Hale crossed the chapel to speak to Ralph Waldo Emerson, who stood alone, as it happened, under the gallery. He introduced himself to Emerson, and congratulated him on the success of his kinsman.

Emerson said, "Yes, I did not know I had so fine a young cousin.

"And now," he added, "if something will fall out amiss—if he should be unpopular with his class, or if his father should fail, or if some other misfortune can befall him—all will be well."

Dr. Hale was indignant with what he called the cynicism of his speech. He thought it the affectation of one who felt that he must say something out of the way of common congratulation.

"But I learned afterward," says Dr. Hale, "what he had learned then, that 'good is a good master, but bad is a better.' And I do not doubt now that the remark which seemed cynical was most affectionate."

What Ailed the Clock.

Mrs. Benson's clock, after having kept excellent time for several years, suddenly stopped. After trying for some time to make it go, she removed it from its shelf and sent it to a clock repairer.

"Madam," he said, after inspecting, "is this clock kept in a damp room?"

"No," she replied, "we keep it in the driest room in the house."

"Has it ever had a fall into a tub of water, or anything of that sort?"

"Never."

"Well, I can't understand it. Its works are as rusty as if it had been left unused in a cellar for a year."

"I can't see how that can be," said Mrs. Benson. "We are so careful of that clock that we always keep our vials of muriatic and sulphuric acid inside of it, where we know they will never be touched."

Then the jeweler understood.—Youth's Companion.

ABOUT PATENT LEATHER.

Many of the Processes of Its Manufacture Are Guarded Very Carefully from the Public.

Patent leather has become a feature in the leather world, and its making has assumed considerable proportions hereabouts. Peabody is probably the largest patent leather manufacturing place in the country, though Newark, N. J., and vicinity probably make more real and imitation patent leather.

All manufacturers have their own tanning processes, much like those of the calfskin tanner, though some patent leather is given a bark tanning. Horse hide and colt skins are the chief leathers made up with a patent finish, and the process of producing the glossy surface is most interesting.

The patent or enamel finish is really painted and baked on, as the bicycle manufacturer paints and bakes enamel onto a frame. Tanners are very particular about keeping their processes a secret, and nobody but workmen are ever allowed into the finishing rooms. Painters are especially kept far from the work rooms. It is said that the workmen have to drink much beer on account of the chemicals with which they work, and the heat of the baking ovens.

The hide or skin having been stretched and dried as much as possible, is first given a coating of a mixture of linseed oil, litharge, white lead or similar materials, boiled together until they make a pasty mixture. This is daubed on the surface with a steel tool, and well rubbed in so that the pores of the leather will be filled up. Then the leather is put into the oven, its surface being exposed to steam pipes at a temperature of about 160 degrees. It takes about half a day for this finish to set.

Next the surface is rubbed down with pumice stone, and then it is covered with linseed oil and ivory black, about six layers being applied, each layer being dried and rubbed down. Finally a varnish is applied, and then the surface is rubbed down and finished off as nicely as a painter finishes a fine carriage.

The final gloss is brought out by exposure to the sun. It is a peculiar fact that Old Sol brings out a better finish than can any artificial drying or baking process. Manufacturers of high-grade patent leather test every skin before shipping it. The test is made by folding the hide or skin at any point seized at random into a double V. This V is hammered with a mallet. If the finish cracks, the skin is rejected, and if it does not crack, the leather is sent to the shoe manufacturer. A patent finish is on a smooth surface and an enamel on a boarded. Japan or lacquer leather is the same as patent. A "boarded" surface is a surface whose grain is raised by roughing it up with a piece of board.—Newport News.

MOTOR VERSUS CARRIAGE.

Scientific Argument in Favor of Automobile Supported by Authentic Diagram.

Persons disposed to call in question the easy-riding qualities of automobiles have their opinions disputed by the following from Automobil-Welt, as translated for Popular Mechanics:

"There is the motor in the front of the machine, with its easy, elastic vibrations. The vehicle itself swings with it, but so softly that you don't notice it unless it stands still. When going, these vibrations actually reduce the shocks from a rough road, which, with a horse-drawn wagon, hit the body suddenly and harshly, throwing it from one side to another, hard and rude, even if the wagon has good springs. The motor vehicle has not only good springs, but also a lower center of gravity, besides pneumatic tires, by all of which the shocks are much softened. And what still remains of irregular jolting is bridged over and smoothed out by the soft, undulating and uniform vibrations of the motor. You can imagine that you are sitting in a boat gliding over a rippling, slightly moved surface."

The relative ease of travel in a carriage and automobile, as set forth by the writer, is shown in the accompanying diagrams, of which the upper indicates the jolting motion of the carriage and the lower the relatively smooth motion of the automobile.

Fatigue of the Muscles.

A scientific investigation of muscular fatigue has been begun by M. A. M. Bloch. From questions sent to persons of many occupations he finds that it is not the most used muscles that are most subject to fatigue, but those that are kept under tension, although doing no work. The back, loins and neck need more exercise to strengthen them, the arms and legs less. The baker becomes first tired in the legs, the wood sawyer in the calves of the legs or the loins, the road digger in the legs, the blacksmith in the back and loins, the young soldier in the back of the neck, the horseman in the thigh, the artillerymen in the neck and loins, the immature violinist in the neck, the practiced violinist in the left hand, the expert fencer in the right shoulder, the oarsman in the calves and insteps.

BLOCK AND TACKLE.

Convenient Apparatus for Lifting Heavy Loads with Comparatively Small Power.

Familiar as many people are with a block and tackle, it is not everyone who understands the principle on which that apparatus works, or why any advantage can be derived from its use. Hence, a short explanation is permissible, says the New York Tribune.

It may be explained, to begin with, that the chief benefit comes from a multiplication of pulleys. If only one pulley be used, there may be some increase of convenience, but nothing is gained in power. Suppose, for instance, that from a point above and outside an open window be secured a single pulley, over which a rope is run, so that both ends touch the ground. Let a heavy object be attached to one, and let a man pull down on the other. If the object weighs more than the man, he cannot start it. It it weighs less, he can. For every one foot of descent at his end, the attached burden will ascend exactly the same distance. The lifting force exerted on it is equal to the pulling force at the other end; that is, theoretically. This may be a handier way to manage the load than if the man was up in the window and tried to raise the same load by a rope running straight downward to the latter. But, after all, there is no gain in power.

Now imagine a different arrangement—that shown in the diagram. Suppose there are two pulleys, one above and one below. Let the weight (W) be attached, not to the end of the rope, but to the block containing the lower pulley. Let one end of the rope be secured to the lower end of the upper block, and put the other end (P) in the man's hands. With these two pulleys he can raise nearly twice his own weight. To lift the load one foot he must pull two feet of rope, and he must work twice as long as before. In all mechanical devices of this sort, what is gained in power must be compensated by extra time and distance.

For the sake of simplicity, the drawing shows only a single pair of pulleys, one in each block. It often happens that there are two or three pairs, two or three pulleys in each block, but only one rope being used. Such an arrangement gives much more power. A single pair doubles (or nearly doubles) the power, two pairs will quadruple it, and three pairs will multiply it sixfold, or nearly so. With four pulleys, two in each block, the man must pull down four feet of rope to raise the weight one foot; and with six pulleys, three in each block, he must pull down six feet to lift it the same distance.

Allowance must be made for the friction of the pulleys in their bearings in the blocks. No matter how good the construction there must be some loss of power from that cause. Possibly this item may be small, say, not over one-tenth or one-twentieth of the power expended. Still, it must not be overlooked.

The foregoing principles apply equally, whether the power applied at P be derived from a man, horse or a steam engine. The advantage comes from a multiplication of pulleys, and what is gained in one way is lost in another. For loading and unloading steamers the block and tackle has the added convenience that it may be suspended from the end of a moveable boom, which may be swung first in one direction and then in the other. Thus lateral as well as vertical transportation is made possible. This other convenience, however, results from the boom, or derrick, not from the block and tackle.

CAN PLANTS REASON?

Prof. Shaler Thinks They Have Some Intelligence and Gives Reasons for His Opinion.

That plants have intelligence is maintained in a thesis by Prof. Shaler, of Harvard university. After discussing the automata, he says: "We may accept the statement that our higher intelligence is but the illuminated summit of man's nature as true, and extend it by the observation that intelligence is normally unconscious, and appears as conscious only after infancy, in our waking hours, and not always them." In summing up the professor uses the following sentences: "Looking toward the organic world in the manner above suggested, seeing that an unprejudiced view of life affords no warrant for the motion that automata anywhere exist, tracing as we may down to the lowest grade of the animal series what is fair evidence to actions which we have to believe to be guided by some form of intelligence, seeing that there is reason to conclude that plants are derived from the same primitive stock as animals, we are in no condition to say that intelligence cannot exist among them. In fact, all that we can discern supports the view that throughout the organic realm the intelligence that finds its fullest expression in man is everywhere at work."

Great Loss by Friction.

The loss by friction on the world's railways is enormous in the aggregate. Dr. Haarman, a German, estimates that it reaches 247,000 tons of steel in a year.

WOMAN AND HOME

THE AMERICAN BEAUTY.

A Composite Made of Photographs of Society Women Noted for Their Attractiveness.

Both in its modeling and composition the typical American face is entirely distinctive. A characteristic style in architecture or literature in the United States remains perhaps to be developed, but the American character, temperament, spirit, call it what you will, has already stamped itself indelibly on our physiognomy. The American woman as a type is famous for beauty touched with intelligence. And although the type is comparatively new her character is indicated as unmistakably as that of any of her

TYPICAL AMERICAN BEAUTY.
(The Result of a Composite Photograph of Twenty New York Women.)

European sisters. The American woman is recognized the world over. The type is besides found in bewildering variety, yet each is unmistakable. The blending of many familiar types of American womanhood in the composite photograph reproduced herewith affords a unique opportunity for judging the typical face.

Familiar as the type, or rather types, are, few perhaps can call up a definite mental picture of the general type itself. The composite face of American women, therefore, fills a long felt want. A score or more of artists have patronized the American girl. The drawings are almost always interesting, many of them are charming and all may be readily indentified as the American girl, yet no two are alike or even similar. No other country in the world, it is safe to say, affords such an opportunity to its artists. In England, for instance, there is a well known type of beauty, somewhat pale and expressionless, perhaps, but unmistakable English. And there is only one. In America there is often a single family in which every daughter illustrates an entirely distinctive beauty, yet without losing the family resemblance.

The composite photograph combines as far as possible the most characteristic types of American beauty as illustrated by twenty well known New York women. It is too much, of course, to claim that the list is complete, but it is at least fairly representative. Nor can it be claimed for such a blending that the ideal type of American beauty has been attained. So varied and distinctive are the types that hundreds of types would have to be considered in such a balance. The composite face, however, is as general and representative as it well can be. Compare it with the typical beauties of other countries, allowing for the impressionistic effect inseparable from such a picture, and the result to the most critical eye cannot fail to be reassuring.

The American woman as portrayed in her composite photograph contrasts strikingly with the typical faces of other countries. The face is perhaps, less nervous than that of the typical French woman, especially the young French woman, but to the American eye, at least, it seems better balanced. In contrast with a characteristic English face the difference is especially marked. The two faces express an entirely different mentality. The American woman, set beside her English cousin, suggests wider and more varied interests and an unmistakable air of independence which strangely becomes her. Compared with the typical Teutonic face, the American woman appears the more alert and vivacious.

Among those whose photographs make up the composite are Miss Helen Morton, Mrs. Chauncey M. Depew, Mrs. Payne Whitney, Miss Alice Roosevelt, Miss Nathalie Schenck, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., and Mrs. John Jacob Astor. — Kansas City Star.

Rain Bath for Pillows.

Feather pillows, if the covers are quite clean, are benefited by leaving them out in a summer rain, afterward sunning them for several days on the clothesline. Down quilts may be treated similarly without the slightest danger of injury. There will be some shrinkage.

Cauliflower with Mayonnaise.

Cauliflower is good eaten cold as well as hot. Boil without breaking the head and throw into cold water until wanted. Tear the roses apart carefully, dry and put in a salad bowl with lettuce leaves. Serve with mayonnaise.

TO DEVELOP THE CHEST.

Easy Way by Which to Increase Bust Measurement Two Inches in Three Months.

The neck and chest can be developed finely in three months by the following rules:

As you walk about raise the shoulders quickly and then throw them back and then down. Count quickly as you do it—1-2-3—raising them to 1 and so on. After going through this three times or more, you are ready to walk properly. Keep the chest out and be careful each time not to let the shoulders come forward at the last count—3. They must go down and back, if anything.

As you walk, continually keep the chest pushed out and the abdomen and stomach forcibly drawn in. See how long you can hold your breath, and, as you hold it, raise the chest higher and higher. This is what singers do when they wish to sustain long passages in one breath.

When you find you must exhaust your breath, do not let the chest fall, and take the breath instantly and quietly through the nose only and by pushing out the sides. Then instantly begin slowly drawing in the sides and abdomen and raise the chest higher and higher.

Any one who will try this will increase in measure from shoulder to shoulder and around bust two inches in three months.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

PLUCKY LITTLE GIRL.

She Conducts a Small Truck Farm and Takes Care of a Family of Seven People.

With the responsibility of a family of seven on her diminutive shoulders, little Eleanor Keefauver, of 110 North Fifty-seventh street, West Philadelphia, is making a plucky fight for existence, and already she is known as the youngest and one of the most successful farmers in America.

This small farmer is only twelve years old, and yet she carries the responsibility in supporting her family with the light-heartedness of the wealthiest and most care-free little girl in America.

Little Eleanor operates an extensive truck patch, and the product she gathers she sells from door to door, and by this means earns, during the summer, at least $20 a week, besides supplying enough to last all through the year. the table at home with vegetables enough to last all through the yetr.

Her father is a paralytic, and though it is true that there is a little Keefauver boy who brings home every Saturday a few dollars from a stocking factory where he works, and that Mrs Keefauver does an occasional job of laundering, still Eleanor is the main support of this poor family.

Every morning she digs and hoes on her small farm, and every afternoon she pushes through the streets with her little go-cart, selling her fresh and excellent vegetables.

She has a host of regular customers, and these customers wait for her every day. They do well to wait for her, too, for she always brings them truck that has been gathered but a few hours.

Eleanor's farm is loaned to her by the Philadelphia Vacant Lot Cultivation association, a charity of an unusually beneficent kind. This association has two hundred acres of vacant land that certain wealthy Philadelphians have intrusted to it until the time when they shall need the land to build upon.

These two hundred acres are loaned in patches to such people as are unable to keep up the fierce struggle for an existence in a great city.

The association lends one patch to a shoemaker whose sight has failed; another to a laborer whom a blast has ruined; a third to an aged man and woman who are childless; a fourth to the Keefauvers.

And its poor pensioners cultivating their patches under the eye of the association acquire in this way enough vegetables to supply their tables all the year round.

Fragrance and Color.

Plants with white blossoms have a larger proportion of fragrant flowers than any others. Next come red flowers, then yellow, and then blue. After these may be reckoned, and in the same order, violet, green, orange and brown flowers. Spring flowers contain the greatest proportion of white flowers, and, therefore, are those most generally fragrant, while the reds and yellows belong to summer.

Raisins Afford Stimulus.

Raisins are specially valuable in cases where sustained physical exercise is necessary, affording both nourishment and stimulus. A bunch of raisins eaten when fatigued often serve the same purpose as a glass of wine. Figs and dates are both valuable in certain conditions, but should be thoroughly washed and looked over before eating. Green figs are an excellent food.

MODEL POULTRY HOUSE.

It Is Thoroughly Well Built and Is Cool in Summer and Comfortable in Winter.

A poultry house over 400 feet long has been built by W. J. Kirwin, of Middlesex county, Mass., who keeps several hundred head of Barred Plymouth Rocks. The house, which faces the south, is 12 feet wide, seven feet high in front and four feet in the rear, with a shed roof that slopes one way. It is thoroughly well built and has an extra protection during cold nights of a mus-

In the accompanying illustration, a shows the drop boards, d d d the roosts, c the nests, b the nest door, and e the floor, which is raised one foot above the outside surface, and is composed of loam and straw. The hens enter the nests from the back and find a darkened place in which to lay. The floor space is entirely clear, which gives them a large amount of room for scratching and exercise. The windows are kept open much of the time in winter, but are always closed at night and during stormy weather.—Farm and Home.

PROFIT IN CAPONIZING.

A Simple Operation and Some Reasons Why It Pays the Farmer to Perform It.

The chief reason for caponizing cockerels is to get a larger profit out of them. Good capons generally sell for a higher price per pound than other poultry. They also weigh more, and are marketed at a time when the flock is bringing little return. A flock of capons are quiet, do not crow and are easily taken care of.

The best breeds to caponize are the medium-sized varieties, such as Plymouth Rocks, Wyandots, Rhode Island Reds, etc. The Asiatics do not give as satisfactory results unless kept until they reach maturity, when they are so large as to be beyond the reach of private families. It does not pay to caponize smaller breeds, for they do not produce dressed fowls of the highest quality. Capons are usually marketed at from six to 12 months of age, and the market for them opens soon after the holidays.

The best time to caponize is when the cockerels are three to four months old. At this age the operation can be performed with less danger than when the birds are older and larger. A bright, sunny day must be chosen for the operation and the birds must have been fasted for at least 24 hours previous. A special set of instruments are necessary for this purpose, and the work requires skill and care. One may easily acquire the skill by practicing on a few dead birds.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Fertilizers on Farms.

That the fertilizer trade has grown to enormous proportions is shown by the figures given for the year 1899. In that year the total expenditure for fertilizers in the United States was $54,783,757, or about $10 per farm. This was about 1.2 per cent. of the value of all farm products. The outlay for fertilizers increased 42 per cent. in the decade 1890 to 1900. Sugar farms spent an average of $280 for fertilizers. For some other classes of farms the figures were: Nurseries, $69; florists' establishments, $51; vegetable farms, $38; tobacco farms, $27; fruit farms, $22; rice farms, $13; coffee, cotton and dairy farms, $11; hay farms, $6; stock farms, $5.

Remarkable Machine.

The potato planter of to-day would make the farmer of a generation ago sit up and rub his eyes. It requires that the potatoes be supplied, but will do all the rest on its own initiative. It picks the potato up and looks it over—or seems to—cuts it into halves, quarters or any desired number of parts, separates the eyes and removes the seed ends. It plants whole potatoes or parts thereof, as desired, as near together or as far apart as the judgment of the farmer on the driving part suggests. Having dropped the seed it covers it, fertilizes it, tucks it in like a child put to bed and paces off the next row with mathematical accuracy. — Philadelphia Press.

The South's Cotton Crop.

The world's dependence upon the product of American cotton fields is graphically shown in the exports records of the fiscal year just closed. In spite of the phenomenally high prices for our splendid southern staple, exports of raw cotton, $316,000,000, showed an increase of close to $28,000,000 over the preceding year. The value of cotton exported constituted more than 40 per cent. of the entire exports of domestic products, and was greater by a round million dollars than the combined value of all cereals and flour. Every effort should be made to maintain our supremacy in the world's cotton market.—Orange Judd Farmer

The J. P.'s Agree.

Staunton, Ark., Aug. 31st.—News comes from Duff, Searcy Co., this state, that Mr. T. E. Reeves, a Justice of the Peace at that place, has written a letter recommending Dodd's Kidney Pills in which he says:

"I think Dodd's Kidney Pills can't be beat for Kidney Trouble, and I wish them every success."

The local J. P. Mr. E. B. Cox agrees with his brother Justice on this point for he says:

"I had a bad case of Kidney Trouble and was not able to do a day's work without great distress. I bought six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and after I had used three boxes I was all right. I am as well as ever, and I cannot praise Dodd's Kidney Pills too highly.

"I have given the other three boxes to some friends of mine who had found out what it was that had cured me so satisfactorily and quickly and they all speak highly of Dodd's Kidney Pills."

CATARRH DESTROYS THE KIDNEYS

Was Miserable—Could Not Stand Up or Walk—Pe-ru-na Cured.

Many Persons Have Catarrh and Don't Know It.

JAMES M. POWELL.

Mr. James M. Powell, 633 Troost street, Kansas City, Mo., Vice Grand of I. O. O. F., of Cherryville, Kan., writes:

"About four years ago I suffered with a severe catarrh of the bladder, which caused continued irritation and pain. I was miserable and could not stand up or walk for any length of time without extreme weariness and pain. I began taking Peruna and it greatly relieved me, and in eleven weeks I was completely cured and felt like a new man."—James M. Powell.

Hundreds of Dollars Spent in Vain.

Mr. Cyrus Hershman, Sheridan, Ind., writes:

"Two years ago I was a sick man. Catarrh had settled in the pelvic organs, making life a burden and giving me little hope of recovery. I spent hundreds of dollars in medicine which did me no good. I was persuaded by a friend to try Peruna. I took it two weeks without much improvement, but I kept on with it and soon began to get well and strong very fast. Within two months I was cured, and have been well ever since. I am a strong advocate of Peruna."—C. Hershman.

Peruna cures catarrh of the kidneys, liver and other pelvic organs, simply because it cures catarrh wherever located. No other systemic catarrh remedy has as yet been devised. Insist upon having Peruna. There are no medicines that can be substituted.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

MIGHTY MEAN TRICK.

One Way of Scoring a Wife's Extravagance Without Raising a Family Disturbance.

He drew a letter from his pocket, glanced at it and hastily put it back; and there was something in the way he did it that attracted his wife's attention. He meant that it should, says the Chicago Post.

"I wonder," she said to herself, "what's in that letter? He certainly was mightily disconcerted when he took it from his pocket."

Later he changed his coat for his smoking jacket and left the coat conveniently near her.

The temptation was too great to be resisted, and when he was out of the room she slyly abstracted the letter from his pocket, as he had meant that she should do.

Her curiosity was satisfied. It was the bill for her latest gown, with comments on extravagance written across it. She wanted to answer them, but she could not without betraying what she had done. She was angry, but she dared not show it. When he returned she had to sit there and smile as pleasantly as she had before he left the room.

Such a mean man!

Christian Flirting.

"The present-day behavior of young people is a continual source of regret to aged travelers. "We used to flirt when I was young. I don't say we didn't," said an old lady, a Sunday or two ago, who was traveling in a suburban train to hear her favorite clergyman preach. "I did it myself, but—" with full consciousness of bygone attractions—"I flirted in a Christian manner, not as girls do now."—Spectator.

The man who marries for money certainly earns it.—Chicago Journal.

SUFFERED FOR FIFTEEN YEARS

Completely Restored to Health.

Mrs. P. Brunzel, wife of P. Brunzel, stock dealer, residence 3111 Grand Ave., Everett, Wash., says: "For fifteen years I suffered with terrible pain in my back. I experimented with doctors and medicines but got little if any relief. I actually believe the aching in my back and through the groin became worse. I did not know what it was to enjoy a night's rest and arose in the morning feeling tired and unrefreshed. My suffering sometimes was simply indescribable. Finally, I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and got a box. After a few doses I told my husband that I was feeling much better and that the pills were doing me good. When I finished that box I felt like a different woman. I didn't stop at that, though. I continued the treatment until I had taken five boxes. There was no recurrence until a week ago, when I began to feel miserable again. I bought another box and three days' treatment restored me to health. Doan's Kidney Pills act very effectively, very promptly, relieve the aching pains and all other annoying difficulties. I have recommended them to many people and will do so when opportunities present themselves."

A Free Trial of this great kidney medicine which cured Mrs. Brunzel will be mailed to any part of the United States on application. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

Notes From Howardville.

EDITOR CAMERON COUNTY PRESS.

Emporium has as many fine young ladies as any town of its size in the state. I have heard this remarked by a number of traveling men. This week as I was walking past some stores in company with a traveling man, whose home is in Williamsport, we were obliged, in front of one store, to leave the walk and take the street in order to pass a bevy of young ladies that had congregated in front of this one store. Numerous times I have seen strangers obliged to leave the walk in order to pass a crowd of girls coming down the walk, arm in arm, sweeping everything before them, not giving a particle of walk to any person unfortunate enough to meet them. I have had several visitors from out of the county, and some from out of the state. All that have ever walked with me on Fourth street from the post office to the C. B. Howard & Company store have spoken of the fine walks, every one of them remarking the width of this walk, and several have remarked that no town of this size in the state had a finer walk—wide, considerably wider than the average sidewalk. Yet for all of the width I have seen a row of girls coming down it that reached from one edge to the other, and anyone that meets them must take to the streets. I do not suppose the young ladies have ever given this matter a thought, and I only call attention to it in a friendly way, for the good reputation of the town among strangers, as Emporium is visited, in a business way, by people from all parts of the country. Please do not crowd any one from the walks; keep half or even two thirds, but give enough for a single pedestrian to pass.

Mr. and Mrs. Rob. Faucett, of Vine street, have had the misfortune to loose their baby daughter, dying last Saturday morning, of acute dysentery. The funeral which was held at the house at two o'clock Monday afternoon, was largely attended.

On Thursday, Mr. Charles Erikson, of Bitumen, Pa., made a visit to Miss Sophia Anderson, who is employed by Mrs. E. L. Mason. He is all right.

Mr. Joe Butler has laid off from work for a week, on account of a bad cut, received from a trimming saw dropping from the fitting anvil onto his leg.

Between now and the fifteenth of next month is the time to watch the game, or when the game season opens there will not be anything left to hunt. We had a good example of that last fall. The law this season calls for non-residents to pay a license, also all foreigners. How will this act with the poor Italian? They will soon be shooting everything in sight. Keep them down to the open season. There is a chance for the Game Warden to make a fortune this fall. XX

The Pleasure of Eating.

Persons suffering from indigestion, dyspepsia or other stomach trouble will find that Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat and makes the stomach sweet. This remedy is a never failing cure for indigestion and Dyspepsia and all complaints affecting the glands or membranes of the stomach or digestive tract, When you take Kodol Dyspepsia Cure everything you eat tastes good, and every bit of the nutriment that your food contains is assimiliated and appropriated by the blood and tissues. Sold by R. C. Dodson.

The Genuine vs. Counterfeits.

The genuine is always better than a counterfeit, but the truth of this statement is never more forcibly realized or more thoroughly appreciated than when you compare the genuine DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve with the many counterfeits and worthless counterfeits that are on the market. W. S. Ledbetter, of Shreveport, La., says." "After using numerous other remedies without benefit one box of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me." For blind, bleeding, itching and protruding piles no remedy is equal to DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Sold by R. C. Dodson.
